

Kaci Jewel Sapp

Our Baby Girl,

It only seems like yesterday we were dropping you off to school every morning. You were so little, yet so independent. Being the baby of five, great survival skills were imbedded in you very early in life. There was always an older sibling around trying to help you do everything. Since you were old enough to crawl and communicate, you let it be known you could do it yourself. I guess at that time you think, these days are going to last forever. Truly, they don't! Here you are all grown up and graduating high school. A lot has changed through the years however, your independent spirit remains. We love that about you! All that you have learned and experienced in the past thirteen years is now paving the way to the wonderful future that lies ahead. You are a beautiful, smart, strong, young lady! The drive within you for a good life, happiness, and most important a relationship with Jesus Christ will all lead you to every goal you set in this life as well as eternity. We are so proud of you!

With endless love,
Mom & Dad
