

---

---

---

The moment finally came at last to find out who was to be the Homecoming Queen of 1984. From the three candidates of the Senior Class, only one was to be presented the crown during halftime. During the week, the high school students voted on the candidates by secret ballot. The lucky girl was Kim Moody, who was crowned by the previous queen, Carmen Long.

Special events took place to arouse the students' spirits for the game. To top off the night, the Warhawks defeated St. Angela 48-7. The Junior Class sponsored a Homecoming dance for a victory celebration to which everyone was invited. The Juniors spent all afternoon decorating the gym with miniature footballs, crepe paper, and spirit chains made by the cheerleaders.

Before the game, the nine Senior football players were recognized with their sponsors. Pride showed in the girls' faces as they were escorted onto the field by the John C. Calhoun football players. This year's players and their sponsors were Joey Craven and Susan Thomas, Charles Cook and Allison Dyches, Robbie Free and Sherrie Rizer, Keith Hadwin and Jodi Crosby, Shan Pye and Jill Griffin, Barry Stewart and Marsha McGinnis, Rhett Turner and Dawn Hudson, Keith Warren and Karen Crosby, and Rob Young and Lisa Avant.

Everyone crowds to the center of the field to congratulate the new queen.

The sponsors let the balloons go as the football players run through the tunnel.

Presenting the new 1984 Homecoming Queen — Kim Moody!

The three Homecoming Queen candidates, Dawn Hudson, Kim Moody, and Marsha McGinnis, dress as hillbillies for Spirit Week.