

Special Times

The Senior year was a special time to the students of the Class of '85. Most of the members of the Senior Class were enrolled in John C. in kindergarten. Together, they went through the kindergarten play, social studies projects, bug collections, and research papers. They shared good times as well as bad. Planning the Junior-Senior Prom, working together to raise money, going on a Senior picnic — these are only a few of the things that brought the class together. They also shared the experiences of taking the SAT, cramming for tests, and dealing with the daily pressures of high school.

As the Class of '85 enjoyed the privileges of being Seniors, they were constantly reminded of their years spent at John C. Leaving close friends and special teachers to start life and go off to college brought tears to the eyes of many as they realized throughout the year that high school was drawing to a close. Although they feel ready to accept the challenge of leaving home, the Class of '85 will never forget the strong friendships built at J.C.C.A.

Bubba Williams shows that elementary students aren't the only ones who can play in the cement pipe.

The library seems to be a popular place for Susan Thomas and Dawn Hudson during their study hall.

Having visited the stables, this group of Seniors heads back to the picnic.
