

A Year Worth

Remembering

These were the best years of their lives — their High School years. It was a time of being young, full of energy and life, a time of learning new things and looking ahead to a brighter future. As minds grew, so did personalities. No two years were ever the same. With each school season there came new faces carrying new ideas and many new changes.

The school was more than academics; it was full of athletics and activities. There was something for everyone. Clubs, parties, proms, carnivals, games, and tournaments; the list stretched for miles. Each student was needed to fill a position. Participating in these activities gave the student a sense of importance and responsibility. They did not work on an individual basis but they worked as a group, a family. Looking back through the season, students shared special memories of school. Whether it was their first kiss on prom night or that winning touchdown they made at the Homecoming game, the memories were there; the memories of the best years of their lives.

Is it really Mini Mouse! Unfortunately, no. On Halloween all the kindergarteners dress in their favorite costumes.

The kindergarteners aren't the only ones who dress up for Halloween. The Seniors display their original costumes to the lower school.

Who could forget the excitement of the pep rallies? Not these children!
