

MOVING UP

The seventh grade was definitely a year of moving up for these students. Everything seemed to be just a little tougher — the teachers, the courses, the homework, and the sports. Many students started playing J.V. sports for the first time — football, basketball, and cheerleading. Others enjoyed the limelight from being the oldest on the B-team league.

For the first time, these students experienced the conflict everyone eventually feels when trying to budget his time to fit everything in. Friendships and relationships were still hard to get used to when you're twelve, and these students were no exception.

The year proved very busy, very full, and very fun for the future Class of '93.

This work's a piece of cake! These students aren't phased a bit by the increase in homework they find in the seventh grade.

The gang's all here! These seventh graders enjoy hamming it up for the camera.
