

EXCITEMENT OF LEARNING

"I like second grade because you learn how to spell words." Mikey Crosby shared this sentiment with his classmates. Social studies and math were other favorites of the second grade students. The highlight of the year was a field trip to see "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow." Seeing this show right before Halloween was a scary experience, as well as fun.

These second graders were industrious too, making a social studies mural to illustrate the things they had learned about communities and neighborhoods. For Christmas, the students made decorations for their Christmas tree, like bells and stars. After all this activity, many second graders still found time for Cub Scouts and Brownies. As Angel Johnson expressed it, "What I like most about school? Going home!"

FRIENDS — Just one of the special things about the second grade. Charlie McLaughlin, Brandon Hill, and Bill Richardson take advantage of recess time to pal around together.

These second graders are fascinated with their music lesson. They especially enjoy singing Christmas carols.

These second graders show off the latest styles in outdoors-wear! Who wants to be cold on the way to lunch?
