

Wild And Wonderful

One could never apply the words "quiet" or "shy" to the class of 1990, so instead they were called "Wild and Wonderful." That's the phrase that was used to describe the seniors five years ago and they are still living up to their nickname. Shenanigans, practical jokes, and general horsing around were all a part of their every day lives. True, this class has gotten into some trouble because of their pranks, but they were just making memories that will last forever.

That first day of kindergarten in the fall of 1977 seems like a very long time ago. Who would have guessed that the class of 1990 would have turned out like this?! After being in the same class for thirteen years these seniors have gotten to know each other very well. They have always seemed to be a big family. This class has gone through a lot together, but there was always someone that you could talk to or a shoulder to cry on.

These seniors will never forget the special trips that they have taken together. They flew to Charlotte, North Carolina in the sixth grade and went to the Discovery Place. In the fifth grade they went to Savannah, Georgia and one memorable event was playing hide and seek in the "heart chambers." They took a trip to Columbia in the first grade and visited the governor's mansion. No one will ever forget the many memorable bus trips to sports events. Several seniors spent an unforgettable spring break in New York. They attended the opera, saw the Statue of Liberty, and went to the top of the Empire State Building. One thing that these seniors will never forget was their senior picnic. The Wild and Wonderful Class of 1990 traveled to Columbia and spent the day with the animals at Riverbanks Zoo.

Cam Wertz and Josh Siegel took time to perfect their acrobatics stunt.

Hmm ... Which way will we go? Susan Zeigler and Kevin Litchfield looked over a map of the zoo.

The friendship between these girls will last forever because it will never be forgotten.
