

Bowling

Many of Webster High's girls sports enthusiasts flocked to Brentwood Bowling Lanes again this year. Membership in G.A.A. was the only requirement for participation in the two tournaments, one held each semester. For girls who wanted to learn to bowl or to improve their skills, a movie and special instructions were offered by the bowling alley before competition began in the fall.

Girls were divided into two groups, eight odd and eight even numbered teams, which bowled on alternating Mondays. Each team was given the opportunity to bowl against every other team in its group.

Girls not only competed for high team ratings but for high individual scores. In first semester bowling Patti McDonnell and Marilyn Culp's teams tied for first place with a four hundred and eighty-five average. Joan Rasmussen was the highest individual scorer. All individual scores above one hundred and twenty were posted on the gym bulletin board after each round.

Although not everyone was this professional a "bunch" of fun was once again provided for the G.A.A. bowlers.

Girls' basketball is divided into two sections: intramurals and coaching.

Those who sign up for intramurals participate in the five games which are set up as a tournament among the intramural teams. This year Ginny Fortnum's team took first place.

To qualify for coaching each girl must pass a basketball skill test. Those who make coaching then compete for the three class teams from the sophomore, junior, and senior grades. After the class games are over, the top basketball team, Varsity, is chosen from the three teams.

In the roster of games, the sophomore class team lost to Kirkwood, beat Maplewood, lost to Ladue, and beat Ritenour. A loss to University City and victory over Ritenour and Kirkwood, were the results of the junior teams. The senior class team, with a win over Maplewood lost to Ladue and University City, thus concluding their season.

Basketball Sports Day, held on February thirteenth, climaxed the "buckets" season. Webster and Maplewood were co-hostesses as sophomores loss to Ferguson, the junior team lost to Normandy, and the seniors beat Wellston.

These concluded a very competitive and successful year for those who participated in basketball.
