Dear Marsha,

It sure has been fun knowing you all the years from 3rd through graduation. I hope we both make it through typing & clerical sh - I didn't like project #6.
You were wonderful in Barrets! Modern was a riot too. I think you should have made the talent assembly - you have a real good voice. Keep up the good work at Big Bend Bank!! Love,
Judy Heath

Dear Mrs. ... have enjoyed getting to know you in classical this year. The best of luck to you in whatever you choose to do.

Dedication

In life are many doorways through which we must go. We are now passing through the Doorway of Learning which has been so generously opened to us. It is to the Doorway of Learning that THE ECHO of 1960 is dedicated. This is the last door through which we will be guided, and we must open the next and all the following ones by ourselves.

Senior School President

*Best of Luck in the future
It's been a real pleasure
knowing you - Have fun
Allan McArtor*

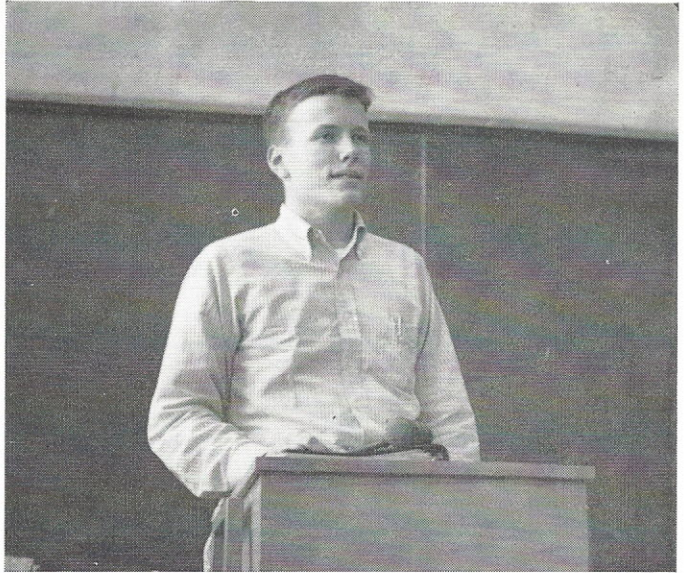

ALLAN McARTOR
Both Schools President

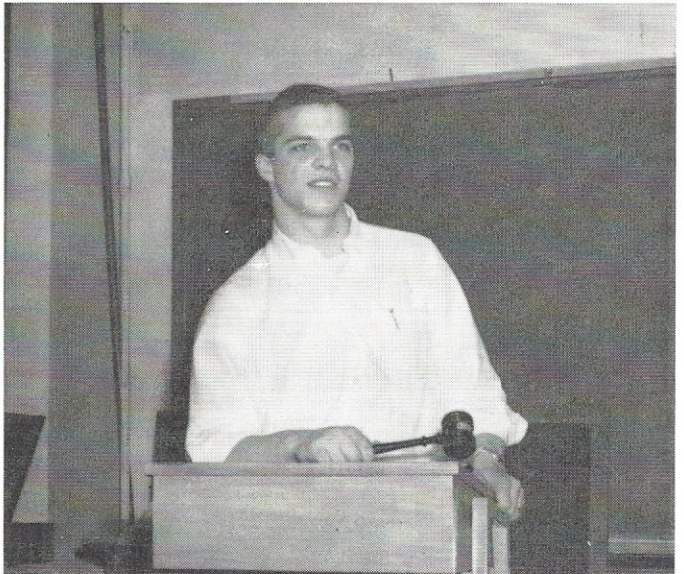

ANITA COLLINS
Junior School President

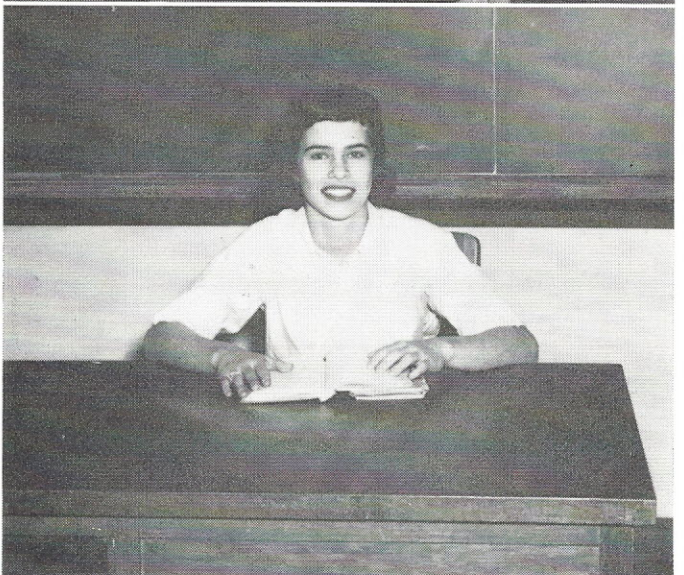

Charlie Cary presided over Student and Guidance Councils and found many opportunities to represent Webster. His responsibilities as Senior School President were equally important. Charlie is known at Webster for his special snicker and hard work, and he tackled each job which befroanted him with ambitious gusto.

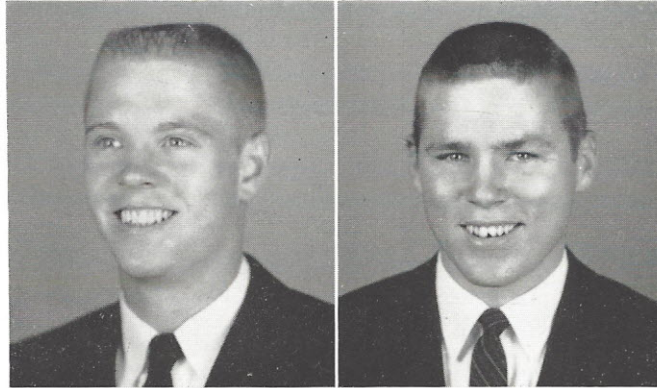

"The man with the gavel" and a determined grin, who presided over Student Council and Guidance Council, and effectively carried out all his duties in the interest of Webster High, was our Student Body President—Allan McArtor.

A girl stepped into the limelight this year as Junior School President. Anita Collins, acting as "executive" over the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades, officiated at Junior Student Council meetings, presided over assemblies, and carried out the business of the Junior School.

"Who is that boy?"

"Haven't you heard? That's Niels Bo Poulsen. He's a student from Denmark; he'll be here all year!"

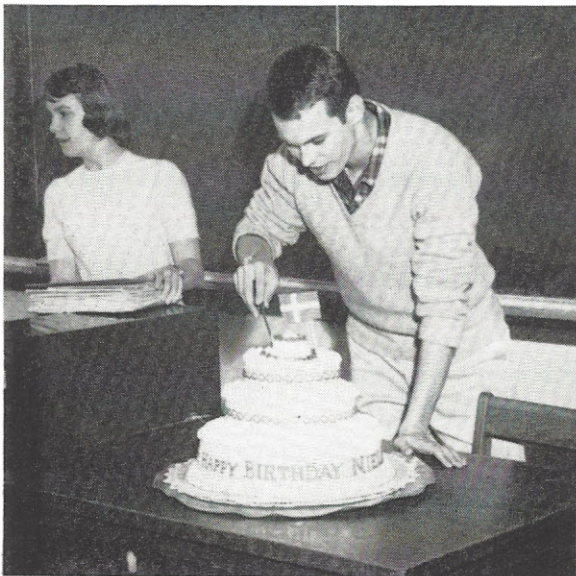

"All year? That's terrific!"

These questions and answers were flying thick and fast as Websterites caught their first glimpse of Niels last September. He had come from Naestved, Denmark, where he lives with his father, a doctor, his mother, and two sisters. In Naestved Niels attends the gymnasium, or high school, where he is taking the "science direction." This entails physics, biology, chemistry, and all kinds of math; but Niels has also studied Swedish, German, French, Italian, Latin, English, and most certainly Danish.

The Danish gymnasium has few extracurricular activities, so Niels has plenty of time to devote to his favorite sport, dancing. Dancing is a true sport in Denmark, for it is a competitive enjoyment, as well as a purely social one. Last year Niels and his partner took part in the national Danish dancing competitions. Tennis and tea also hold top positions on his list of favorites.

In the summertime Niels lives in paradise, or at least what would seem like paradise to us. His home has a fjord on one side and the ocean on the other.

Niels, thank you for being in Webster, and know that from now on you may have a steady stream of Americans knocking on the door of that summer home.

Enthusiastic plans and hard work! These were the accomplishments of the eager Junior Class under the direction of Miss Jackson, Mr. Griffith, and the class cabinet.

The cabinet was composed of many committees, each of which was in charge of one of the year's activities. Sponsored by Miss Farmer and headed by Barb Roberts, the Class-Ring Committee ordered rings in January and awaited their arrival in late April. Money-making projects included a coat check in the Dance Carnival and the Senior-Junior Basketball Game, planned by George Adams. Due to the tremendous success of their work day as sophomores, another one was scheduled for the last of April. Other industrious cabinet members were: Pat Baxter, Skip Davis, Palmer Hartl, Marilyn Hays, John McArtor, Gail Monroe, Gay Miller, Bob Risk, Barb Roberts, Betsy Stoddard, Janet White, and Sally Williamson.

The big social event of the year was the Junior Prom. The five hundred juniors are now looking forward to their senior year and hoping it will be as much fun and as big a success as their junior one has been.

Enthusiasm at its height.

School spirit and political know-how—the Sophomores displayed these qualities outstandingly. With amazing ease they flowed from two sources into one co-ordinated host at 100 Selma, abounding in energy and ability. An effective class cabinet, formed of the home-room presidents, set to work Wednesday mornings before school. With their sponsors, Miss Howard, Mrs. Gaw, and Mr. Brucker as guides, and with Jill Newburg as cabinet secretary, this group of leaders began deliberation.

Ability and maturity came forth as they tackled the question of democratic processes from a philosophical angle. Some "why's and wherefore's" considered were "How should nominations be made?" and "How should the election proceed?" Although this unique method of political decision-making delayed actual activity, its sure results were certainly worthwhile. Elaine Knudsen was elected president, to be reinforced by Bernie Machen, vice president. In preparation for the following years, the cabinet peered into coming drains on the purse and into senior doings.

Peppiness assuredly sparked this class as it leaned into athletic opposition both from the stands and off the bench. For the first time its Pep Clubbers traipsed ardently by bus to away night games. In particular the bucketball squad rose strongly to win twelve and drop only two.

Senior Student Council

The Senior Student Council of 1959-60 may be characterized by its extraordinary ambition. Several "Webster firsts" were achieved by the council this year. Perhaps the most outstanding of these was the topping of our $13,000 magazine sales goal. Did I hear someone say that the theme of the sales was the "Unlucky Thirteen?"

Council meetings were called to order every other day by Charles Cary and Allan Mc-Artor. Under their leadership the council carried out many of the school activities. The first business of the year included Hello Week and Football Week. The traditional pep rally, bonfire, and torchlight parade were under the joint supervision of the Pep Rally and Color Day Committees. Later in the year such activities as the "World Fair" Dance Carnival were planned.

Due to the efforts of this year's and last year's Student Councils we were able to have Webster High's first foreign exchange student, Niels Bo Poulsen.

Those sophomore girls!

Junior Student Council

Let's hear it!

An active Student Council? You bet! This year's council worked particularly hard on new activities.

The council members started their year by decorating the junior school showcase and by generally raising school spirit. December proved to be an exceptionally busy month. The members sponsored a Christmas toy drive, held by the seventh, eighth, and ninth graders. Also in December the Junior School was given a column in The Webster Echo, and a council committee kept the column filled with junior school news. December eighteenth wrapped up a busy month for an active council; this was the date of the sock hop held in the junior girls' gym.

During the second semester the representatives kept things rolling at a rapid pace for all junior schoolers. As in the past they entered a booth in the Dance Carnival and also held joint meetings with the Hixson Student Council.

Guidance Council

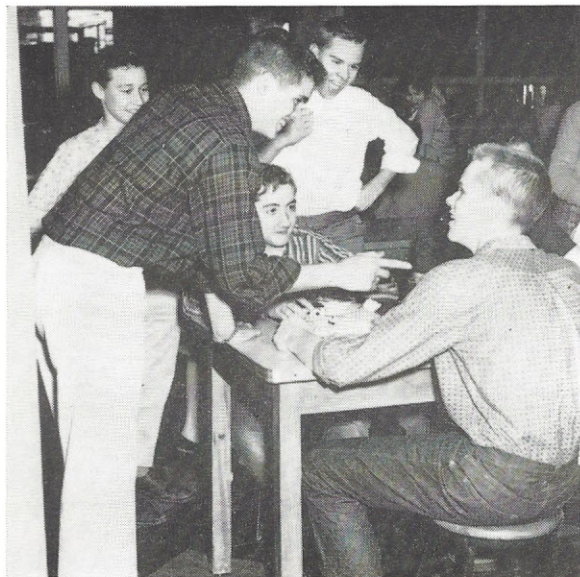

It's no joke, Charley!

"Debbie, will you bring in our next victim, please?" This is a typical request made by Al or Charlie as he presided at one of this year's Guidance Council meetings.

Obviously, the term "victim" referred to a violator of the Honor Code. Although the council often jokingly used this term, its members felt strongly about the culprits. Therefore, at each council meeting they endeavored to explain to these students the importance of an effective Honor Code — one unanimously obeyed and respected.

Did the members cease all efforts as they left room two hundred one? No! They spent many sessions brainstorming to find ways to improve their effectiveness. During the second semester they tested a system of procuring and filing the names of students participating in the honor system.

This successful plan is an example of the hard work and excellent results of our Guidance Council.

"Gotcha this time!"

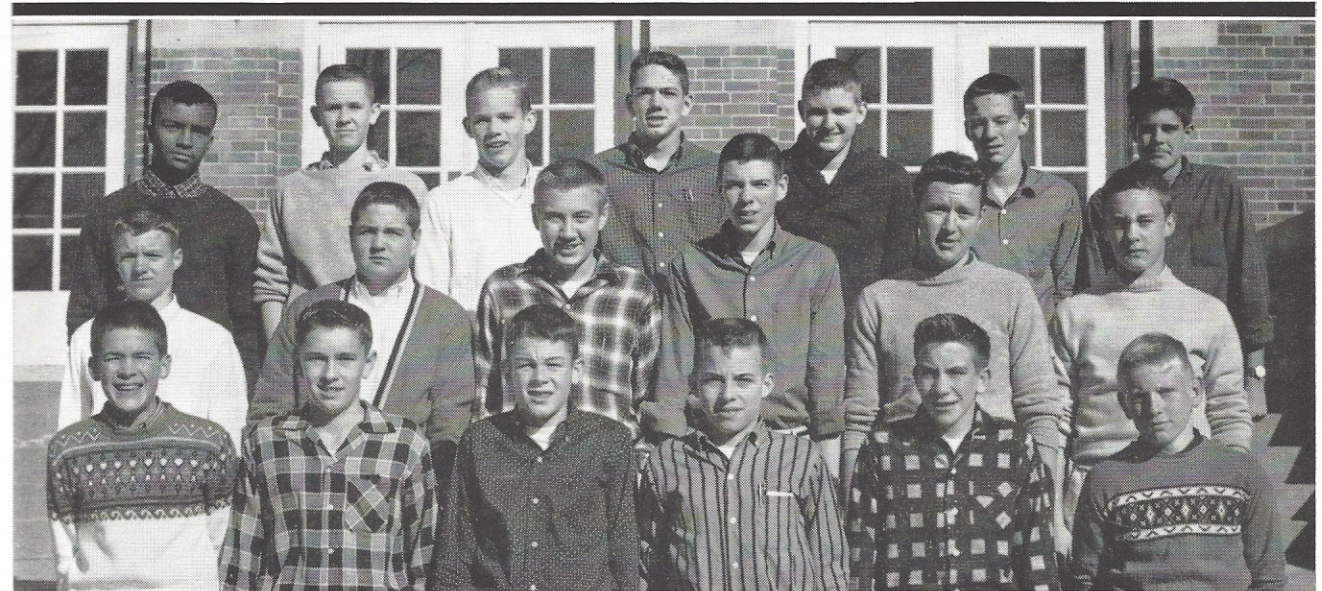

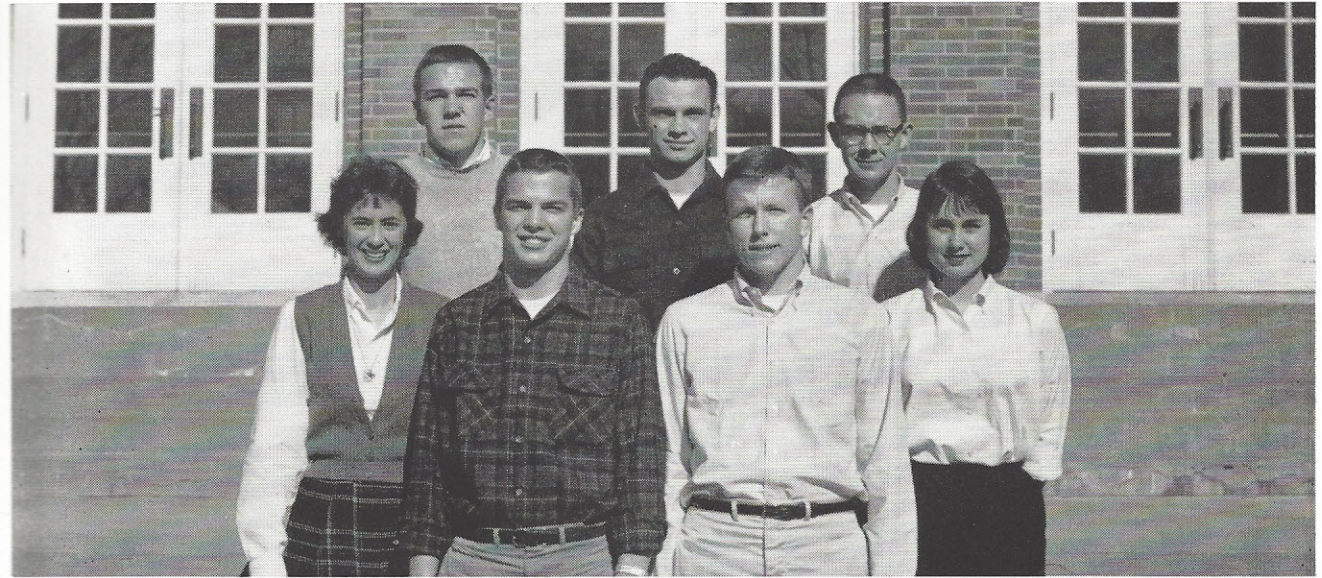

Making law and order of the seeming noon-time bedlam in the junior school was the job handed to the lunchroom and hall monitors. Under the direction of Mr. Quist, eighth and ninth grade boys who were judged mature and trustworthy enough for the assignment kept eager students from running in the halls and on the stairs. The punished offender usually found himself taking the hall over at a somewhat more moderate pace; a punishment which usually discouraged further offenses.

Although few senior school students realize it, it is to the hall monitors of the junior school that they owe the clean cafeteria at lunch time, for twenty-one special lunchroom monitors were assigned to the cafeteria to see that all tables were left neat and ready for use.

The Echo

"Buy candy!" and "You must own a Turkey Day button!" were the two plaintive cries uttered most often by Echo staff members in the fall of '59. By New Year's Eve the words had changed to "Deadline in three weeks!" but the tone was the same: desperate. Now, at the end of what has seemed to be a grueling year, we see that these worries were unfounded because the members of the yearbook staff have pulled through the sales and the parties, and even through the deadlines and the Coronation in fine shape. As a result of the work and the laughter and the tears these thirty smiling faces (with the aid of one undaunted advisor) are now able to present The Echo of 1960.

This book is brand new; it's just off the press. It tells of student life at Webster High during the past year, and to those who participated in this life, every moment has been new and different. In this book these things have been recorded. It is hoped that through The Echo of 1960 they will be remembered.

The Webster Echo

Headlines to write! By-lines to achieve! Deadlines to meet! These are the challenges presented to staff members of The Webster Echo. With news coverage representative of the entire student body, ten issues of the paper were written and circulated among students, and over 300 exchanges with other schools were conducted by members of the business and editorial staffs. This shows quite a change from that December in 1915 when members of the sophomore class published the first edition of The Webster Echo.

Publication expenses were met through the sale of advertising and income from magazine sales, activity tickets, a booth in the Dance Carnival, and the Paper Doll Prom. Profits from the sales of chocolate, folders, and basketball buttons augmented these funds.

This fall, members of The Webster Echo won first place awards for journalistic writing at both the Metropolitan St. Louis and the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association Conferences.

The social activities of the staff included ten "folding parties," a tea for the staff and alumni during the Christmas holidays, and the annual spring banquet at which the editors and staff for the coming year were announced.

Journalism Class

On sex!

Eyes open! Ears alert! Pencil and pad in hand! These are the markings of an eager J-Cub. In preparation for positions next year on the staff of The Webster Echo, the journalism class became thoroughly indoctrinated in the fundamentals of good news-writing and the mechanics of newspaper production. They aided the regular staff by covering "news beats," selling advertisements, and working on such activities as the Paper Doll Prom, Alumni Tea, and Dance-Carnival booth. This fall they attended two journalism conventions where they helped capture top awards for Webster and successfully campaigned to elect Mary Rankin as secretary-treasurer of the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association.

The average person who thinks he knows what debate is . . . is . . . wrong! Behind this extreme statement lies the truth: it is a highly developed skill of logic—and of clever "il-logic"—which is mastered by the several Webster students who scramble yearly for National Forensic League membership.

Our debators jawed their way through another strong season, despite their relative inexperience. For instance, Reba Neukom won in the Voice of Democracy Radio Speaking Contest, Larry Hill in the American Legion Oratorical, and Larry and Charles Brock copped best speaker medals at a Student Congress. On top of this the kids with the cases under their arms had a staggering schedule: four tournaments of debate or individual events, a Christmas play at the Public Library, the Junior Town Meeting of the Air, Optimist and Junior Chamber of Commerce speaking contests, and a Sweepstakes Tournament here. Four lively social activities spiced this heavy calendar.

Future Teachers of America

Throughout the past year, eleven career-minded F. T. A. members have combined their ideas and energies in order to learn more about the teaching profession.

The club wasted no time in starting its activities. In November the members went to the St. Louis School for the Blind. This proved to be one of the more valuable of their experiences. Several times their sponsor, Mrs. Bodman, arranged for movies to be shown to the group. A Christmas party given at Edgewood Children's Home produced a happy Christmas spirit for both the F. T. A. members and all the children involved. February held three important events: A trip to University City High School, a speech given by Mrs. Fitzsimmons, and a dinner with the Webster High faculty. This dinner was sponsored by the Webster Groves Classroom Teachers Association. Other students who are interested in teaching attended this meeting, and national officers of the Department of Classroom Teachers were also there.

Quill and Scroll

The quill and scroll of ancient writers has come to symbolize excellence in writing and thus has become the name of the international honorary journalistic society. In order for a Webster student to be eligible for Quill and Scroll he must have done superior work on The Echo annual or The Webster Echo in the fields of writing, editing, or business management. A candidate, who must have maintained an average which places him in the upper third of his class, is first recommended by a sponsor of one of these high school publications and then approved by a national officer of Quill and Scroll to become a member.

It is the ambition of every person on the two staffs to become a member of Quill and Scroll. Happy faces are seen in the spring as the invitations are delivered.

"How many hours do you have?" I wonder who'll make his five hundred?"

These questioning comments originate with harried dramatics aspirants, who, if they want to be Thespians, must devote ONE HUNDRED HOURS of their schedules to play-making. And some "Barrymores" have even been known to have gathered five hundred hours to become "honor" Thespians.

Webster's troupe, one of the earliest established and this year a quarter of a century old, is the core of drama production here. It applies Pope's words, "Act well your part, there all the honor lies," with seriousness and gusto. On the other end of the scale, it keeps an eye on "L. T." finances and sells cokes at productions. It also took this year to rewrite its constitution. The banquet at the year's end traditionally serves up outstanding achievements to the deserving troupers.

Did you know that an arrow cannot move, or that Achilles could not overtake a tortoise in a foot race? These paradoxes, and other more serious questions were discussed vigorously by Webster's honor math students who comprised the Webster High chapter of Mu Alpha Theta, a national mathematics organization. Sponsored by Mr. George Brucker, the math club had an extremely successful initial year. Among its many activities was a tutoring service set up to aid other students who were having difficulty in mathematics. Proceeds from this tutoring went towards the purchase of books for a math library.

Also, several times during the year, the club visited Washington University for lectures by top math professors. Through such activities as these, Mu Alpha Theta fulfilled its purpose which was as stated by Mr. Brucker, to "promote the scholarship and the enjoyment and understanding of mathematics."

The Webster High A. V. O., under the capable guidance of Mr. Shrader and Mr. Ogle has spent a busy year giving their usual fine service to the school. The eighteen members gave up their study halls to perform their vital function of visual education for their classmates.

This year, new enthusiasm and resulting improvements have burst out in the A. V. O. The boys, using test equipment which they have built themselves, have begun to service all of their own equipment. When a projector or amplifier goes out of operation, Webster's own electronics experts take over, instead of sending the machine elsewhere for repairs as was done previously.

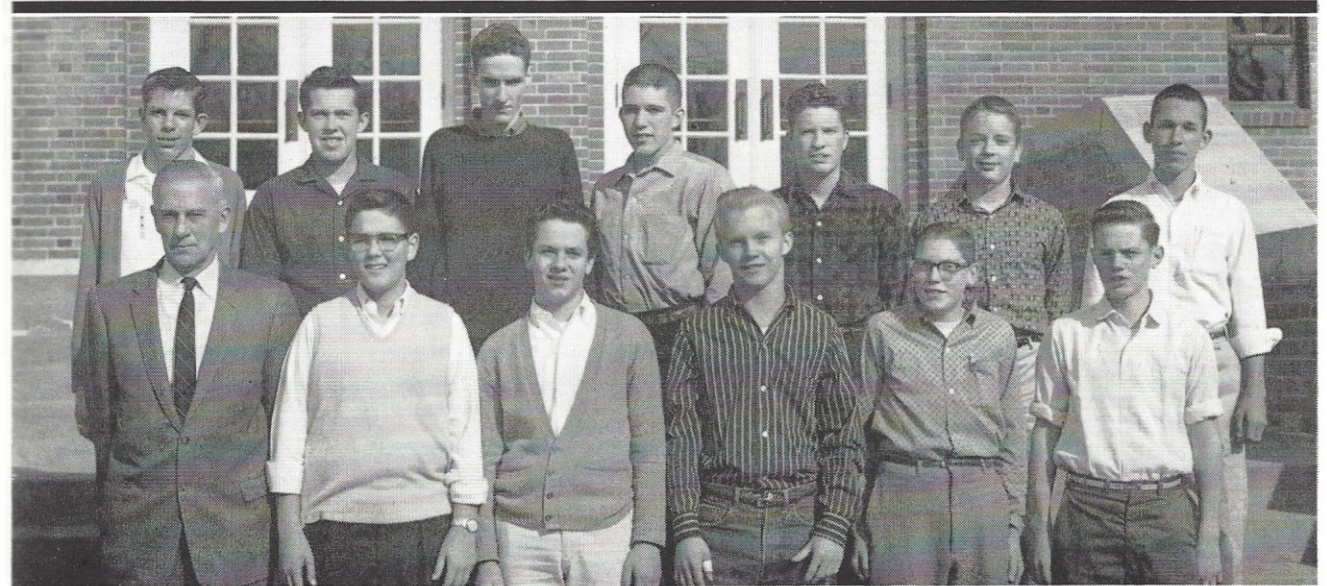

In the words of Mr. Shrader, "Any boy who has a sincere interest in electronics and is serious about his work, can learn a good deal from A. V. O."

Latinus Rumor

The nationally recognized Latinus Rumor has now finished its thirty-second successful year of publication. The paper, begun in 1927 as a Latin Club project, has a circulation of approximately 400 editions and an exchange list of twenty-two schools in fifteen states. Guten morgen! Wie gehts? Each Thursday afternoon these words echoed from the walls of room 315 where the German Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Gertrude Fiehler, met in an effort to improve spoken German and the knowledge of German culture. During these meetings the members often listened to German records and discussed the country. They practiced fluency of the language by conversing in it and learning many German songs. They played several German card games and chess, an internationally popular pastime.

One of the most interesting and enlightening activities of the club was correspondence with pen pals in East Germany. Members observed the holiday season with a Christmas party at which Niels Bo Poulsen was the guest of honor. Climaxing much preparation, the Schnitzelbank, a type of German song, was successfully presented at the Dance Carnival.

On the wave of foreign language enthusiasm rides the new Russian club, novel at Webster and thoroughly progressive. Interested students and teachers have spontaneously become an effective teaching-learning set-up. A few had previously picked up a contact with Russian at Mark Twain Summer Institute and other schools, but most of the members were completely green concerning the non-Romance language.

The group's mysteriously initialed name has been doubly interpreted: it stands for that apparently honored title in Communist Russia of "Hero" and also for the "Horrible Early Russian Organization" (it meets before school). Following formation, the club instantly announced its own "Russian Week," sporting gold "H.E.R.O." badges. Class drill and Russian records were used as the scholars swung into work on the foreign alphabet, grammar, and vocabulary. The difficult job of obtaining books was tackled; and of course, plans are for enthusiastic expansion next year.

Speak a modern language!

This emphasis is receiving almost unrivalled importance in the foreign language field. "And," says the French Club, "what tongue is better spoken than French?" Its members have been seen fluently conversing the language over the original and since imitated "French table" scheduled every two weeks at lunch-time. The club obtained a subscription to Le Monde, the Sorbonne's newspaper; and students discovered that they could also enjoy school issues of French magazines. Delightful pictures of France were shown at two meetings. In addition, the club had a successful Christmas party.

The officers organized the club more tightly with a set of by-laws. Moreover, they enthusiastically revived the idea of a newspaper written entirely in French. A staff was formed and began with a Christmas issue. Le Cercle Francais has certainly succeeded in furthering language appreciation among us.

Led by their sponsors, Miss Campbell and Mrs. Koons, the senior school chapter of the Junior Red Cross completed a year of worthwhile activities. Work began in the summer when junior volunteers were provided for Jefferson Barracks Hospital. Bloodmobiles were also provided with extra help.

Two important drives were led: the first for members and the second for money. The largely successful membership drive took place in November. Later in the year a bake sale was held to earn money for such projects as the overseas chest.

Two real compliments were paid our Red Cross organization when Ronald Moch was elected one of two students to hold a position on the Webster Groves Region Board of Directors, and Susan Vesper was elected President of the Webster Groves Region Interscholar Council.

Y. F. C. Bible Club

The early meeting hour of 7:30 A.M. did not discourage Y.F.C. club attendance. The group, whose size doubled this year, found inspiration in searching the Bible for guidance in everyday living.

Through films, discussions, and guest speakers, the club endeavored to provide meditation and thought for its members and to present Christ's teachings as a way of life. The panel discussions dealt with such topics as "What is a Christian?" and "Is the Bible the inspired word of God?" The Bible quiz team, one of the club's activities, gained many victories over competitors from other schools.

This Webster club is a branch of the International Council of Youth for Christ. City-wide rallies bring the clubs from St. Louis high schools together for Christian fellowship.

"Bradford Street regulars," commonly known as dramatic bugs, are found with knocking knees at tryouts; in blue jeans and fantastically decorated shirts on set devising; with make-up-gooey fingers before a show; among props and scenery on dark stages; and just giving the world a verbal spin, in eager little bunches.

Instructive meetings and experimental plays, such as Chekov's The Proposal, were presented. Furthermore, the first cast of a major production this season was unusually large, the second was so small and so challenging that it was doubly cast, and the third one had exceptional opportunities for elderly character parts.

The children's play, The Clock Struck One, was a resurrection of an old idea of "Children's Theater." For it, there had to be movable sets and equipment, so that it could travel to the grade schools.

Office Assistants

Who are those busy girls who do all the school errands including delivering attendance sheets, collecting pink and green slips, filing cards, taking announcements to teachers and students, summoning pupils to the office, and many other duties?

They are the office assistants—the students who willingly give up their study halls to do the tasks that help the school function. These girls, under the direction of Mrs. Nell Bopp, are responsible students who maintain good grade averages.

Though they might be called “the women behind the scenes,” these girls deserve credit for the services they perform for the school.

Vive l'education!

Library Assistants

The flood of students scrambling into the Senior Library for books increased to tidal proportions this year. Conversely, the staff of energetic and helpful assistants was unusually small.

Since these volunteers are animated by personal attraction to books and a desire to direct people to information (as well as a pronounced dislike for study halls, says officer Christine Lehn) their work was nonetheless pleasurable. The sharply rising call for materials set them to the chore of speedily preparing nearly four hundred new “paperbacks” for the shelves.

To add to their fun and knowledge of library work, frequent meetings were held where the girls with the date stamps in their gluey, book-dusty hands got together and studied new facets of their jobs. At Christmas (and also in the spring) they momentarily washed their hands of such travail and had a purely enjoyable party.

Hi-Y

Complete and unabridged

Webster Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs are organized with the purpose of fostering Christian ideals and beliefs throughout the home, school, and community. These purposes are carried out through recreational activities and services to others.

The senior clubs followed tradition by publishing the Buzz Book and by sponsoring "the better than ever" Friendship Dance with Kirkwood. Hi-Y's worked hard selling pens and pumpkins for their "date" week-end at Trout Lodge. Junior clubs published the Date Slate with that new "long, low look."

Each club sponsored money-making projects in order to contribute to World Service and Buildings for Brotherhood, which establishes Y.M.C.A.'s all over the world.

Youth and Government was one of the interesting activities promoted by the Youth Council, a board made up of two members from each club. This was a model legislature held in Jefferson City at the Capitol and open to representatives from clubs throughout Missouri.

Varsity Cheerleaders

"Go Webster!" was the cry of this year's peppy Varsity cheerleading squad. Led by captain Carol Keiser, the squad showed its spirit and ability throughout the season.

With new white pleated skirts, the girls represented a new burst of energy as well as a change from the black slacks previously worn. Several cheers were changed by new motions and clever formations. New cheers and chants included Eight Clap Fight, We've Got the Action, Hold That Line, and Webster Fight.

When the squad jumped into a busy football and basketball season the girls found a tremendous channel of spirit to work with, not only from the Varsity Pep Club, but from the newly formed Varsity Club.

Webster will remember the '59-'60 Varsity Cheerleaders for their energetic and effective work in promoting school spirit.

Girls' Athletic Association

G.A.A.: Greatest Athletes Anywhere? Well, maybe these initials don't have this exact meaning, but they do represent a fine group.

This organization of senior school girls worked this year "To promote good sportsmanship and widen friendships." The club succeeded in carrying on tradition, yet was also able to entertain new ideas and activities.

As previously, the organization encouraged participation in sports on the intramural, class team, and varsity levels. Also in the category of traditional activities, the members operated a food truck at each home football game, presented Dad's Night, held a Mother-Daughter Banquet, and sponsored the Kampus King Dance.

For the first time charms bearing the G.A.A. insignia were made available to all members. Also a "first timer," a G.A.A. get-well card was designed and mailed to any sick members. A trip to K.S.D. for the Pevely Playhouse Party climaxed an eventful year.

OFFICIALS

A whistle, a black and white striped pinney, two keen eyes: these are the qualities of a good official.

This vivacious group of girls known as "Officials" is an invaluable contribution to our girls' athletic department. It is their duty to referee at the intramural basketball, volleyball, and softball games.

CONCESSIONAIRES

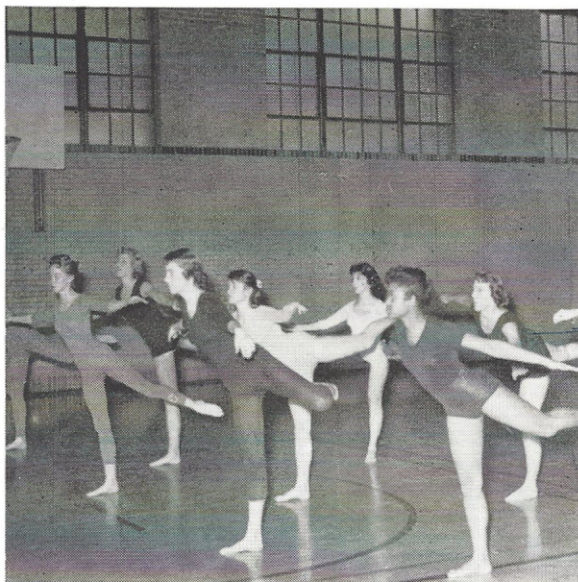

Many students give their time in service to the school. When we are expressing our gratitude for these services, it is easy to overlook a group like the Concessionaires. These girls show their school spirit by selling refreshments at all home football games. Many thanks to a fine group!

MODERN DANCE CLUB

Groans and sighs issuing from the junior girls' gym became less audible as the year progressed and as the girls became more skilled in the techniques of modern dance. Climaxing a year of hard work, an advanced group known as the "Turpsichords" presented the annual spring concert.

Ice Skating Club

"Steinberg Ho" was the cry heard every Saturday morning during the winter season as the members of the Ice Skating Club started out on a caravan to the rink. Once there, this group of girls had a jolly time. They "goofed around" a lot, but also learned a great deal from each other about the arts of figure skating. They exchanged ideas and suggestions and derived the best methods for doing "Spread Eagles" and "Figure Eights."

During the great blizzard of February and March the club tried their skates on some of the lakes and ponds in the county area. This venture proved to be lots of fun, if not particularly organized, for here skating became a true outdoor sport.

To quote their president, "We tried to get professional lessons in figure skating, but when the lowest price was one dollar for ten minutes—well—that's not too good." Nevertheless, led by their sponsor, Mrs. Schroeder, the Skating Club had a season filled with "much fun."

Inimitable poetry is the keynote of The Barretts of Wimpole Street by Rudolf Besier. A woman, semi-invalid, lives in a boxed-in shadow but can nevertheless hold to herself an artistic soul and forceful character. She, Elizabeth Barrett, beacons out light through her poetry; and this attracts another poet, Robert Browning. The walls of her enclosure are strong, created by her father, a man obsessed with selfishly confining his eldest daughter. He clings neurotically to her companionship and thunders against any romantic relationships involving his domineered brood. Of course, he cannot stop all the possible leaks; as a result, after much soul-searching, Elizabeth and Robert embark from Wimpole Street and from gloomy England to Italy's golden light.

A shift from the mid-Victorian era to St. Louis of the middle 1930's is Tennessee Williams' The Glass Menagerie. Interior and lighting set the mood of this memory play, which is narrated by one of the four characters, the reflective son, Tom. His mother bases her definite shadings of right and wrong in life on customs of her Southern past in "Blue Mountain." Her extremely withdrawn daughter Laura might be interpreted as even nurturing her slight limp and subconsciously using her shyness to reject the world, which in turn passes her by. Her long-prepared-for "Gentleman Caller" does arrive and brings Laura out somewhat. However, he is engaged and soon leaves her with a well-meant but freely bleeding amputation of her "peculiarity," as he has also accidentally broken the horn off the unicorn in her otherwise normal glass menagerie.

Bull in a China Shop, which Little Theater star, Sheila Lehr, calls a "morose, farcical little bagatelle," was also used on Alfred Hitchcock's television series. It is a half-mystery, half-comedy tour de force by C. B. Gilford, concerning a boarding house of spinsters. They are enamored of a neighboring detective, whom they love to spy on. To attract his attention and visits they kill off two of their sisters and send poisoned chocolates to a prospective girl friend. By this time their scheming is apparent to the detective, who switches departments from homicide to arson. The ladies' final stroke is obvious when the boarding house is enveloped in flames.

Smashed hit.

Emerging triumphantly from the robe room of 117 with one stole (slightly soiled), one collar (minus snaps), and one robe (measured to fit), each Beginning Choir member braced himself for the year ahead. It began with an informal outdoor gathering at Lynden Hanger's home where skits were presented enabling the new members to become better acquainted with each other.

Candles in hand, they rhythmically swayed down the dimly lighted aisles in the Christmas Vesper Services. Their beautiful performance was the reward of many weeks of hard work, learning to blend their voices and to sing as a group.

After Christmas they worked on familiar choir songs and arrangements for spring programs. This "bestest" choir toured several grade schools in addition to taking part in the spring show presented by the A Cappella Choir.

As "first timers" in advanced choir, this year's members strove to maintain the high caliber of work always exemplified by the A Cappella Choir.

No sooner had the group entered the portals of room one hundred seventeen than they began to realize the obligation and heavy schedule of the advanced choir. November second was the first of the many programs given for the P.T.A. and for service groups. During the hectic month of December the choir members were invited to sing at Rotary, The Reliable Insurance Company, and Jefferson Barracks Veteran's Hospital. In addition they presented the alum sing, fun assemblies, and the traditional Vesper Services. Mid-January brought the beginning of the rehearsals for their program, "Smash Hit," which lived up to its name when the choir publicly presented it in early April.

An informal and also sentimental gathering known as "Colbrey's" culminated a successful year for the 1959-1960 A Cappella Choir.

Vespers

A Cappella Choir, Beginning Choir, Boys' Choir, and the Angel Chorus once again presented the unique Christmas pageant, Vespers. Under the direction of Miss Esther Replogle with the assistance of Miss Nancy Wieman, the choirs inspired every congregation with their traditional carols.

The service, consisting of the shepherd and nativity scenes, was beautifully portrayed by the forty students representing the Biblical characters. The stage, props, and make-up crews also deserve credit for their capable assistance in producing Vespers.

This year, four performances were held: two on Sunday, December nineteenth, for the general public, and two on Tuesday, December twenty-third, for Webster High School students.

All those in the community, whether they attended or participated in Vespers, will remember this majestic pageant portraying the birth of Christ as a special religious service, and one in which deep meaning can be found for all those with the true Christmas spirit.

Extra! Extra! Read all about it, "Smash Hit."

This is the opening line of one of the paper-boys' script in the spring choir program. The show which was "put together" by Miss Replogle, Miss Weiman, and Mrs. Pate, was presented for the public on the evenings of April first, second and fourth.

Included in the production were numbers from various Broadway hits such as "Flower Drum Song," "Sound of Music," "Fiorello!" "Music Man," "L'il Abner," and "Billy Baine's Review." The songs were grouped according to the sections of the country which they best typified.

One scene was composed of southern music and dancing, while another was completely western in atmosphere. A Mexican scene demonstrated Beginning Choir's contribution to the show. Their brightly colored sarapes, huge straw hats, and Spanish songs set the scene for a gala Mexican fiesta.

Due to the costumes, one of the most striking numbers of the program was a ballroom scene. The boys were dressed in summer tuxedos, and the girls in white formals with rose colored panels. "Dream," "You'll Never Walk Alone," and "A Dream Is A Wish Your Heart Makes," are some of the more well-known songs from this scene.

The program represented many hours of hard work, but this work was not in vain. All those who saw it agreed that it was truly a "Smash Hit."

Webster High School Band — 1930 State Champions

Concert Band

35th Anniversary of the Symphonic Band

The Webster Groves High School Band was started by Mr. William A. Gore, the Superintendent of Schools, in 1925. Mr. William A. Gore played the clarinet in this eighteen-member band and in his words "played as loud as he could so they would all end at the same time." Mr. Hans J. Lemcke, to whom the Music Department will always be indebted for his untiring and unselfish service, was soon secured by Mr. William A. Gore as a director for the band. Every year of its first three seasons of participation in the state contest at Columbia, the Webster High Band won an award. In 1925, the band gave its first Annual Spring Concert.

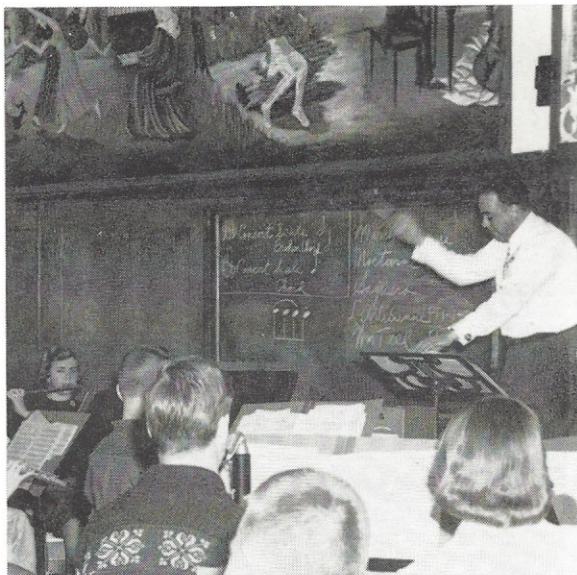

John Philip Sousa, "The March King," provided the highlight of 1928, when he visited here and enthusiastically praised our rapidly growing band. In 1929 the band played at the formal opening of the Webster Groves Public Library. Two silver loving cups in one year! This was the story for 1930-1931. Everyone was kept busy with the Spring Concert, which had become a tradition at Webster by now. First place in the Washington University music contest for the five years, 1932-1936, was one of the many rewards for the ever-growing efforts of the band. In 1940, a voluntary marching band was formed from the Symphonic Band. In that year the band received the lion's share of the musical attention because of their flashy new uniforms, provided by the Chamber of Commerce. During the next year the band was presented with the colors by the American Legion.

In 1942 the renowned was heard on a broadcast over KXOK. In 1944, as in many future years the band provided members for the All County Band. By 1945 the band had grown to eighty-five members, and by 1947 it had ninety-five members, twenty-two of which were in the All-County Band. Webster was host to groups participating in the St. Louis County Music Festival from 1946 to 1948. During the next few years band members were busy again with the Annual Music Festival, the Annual Spring Concert, and assemblies given all over St.

Louis County. Following in his father's footsteps, Mr. Henry Lemcke came to Webster High in 1953. The unique feature of this year was an open air concert held at Blackburn Park. 1955 brought with it our first Pops Concert. Something new for the band came again in 1957 when it made its first recording.

On the Thirty-fifth Anniversary of the Symphonic Band we can easily see its remarkable progress. This year the band presented two P.T.A. programs and its Sixth Annual Pops Concert featuring "Rhapsody in Blue" with guests, Nicolai Gogotzki, celebrated European conductor, and Hubbert Drury, pianist with "Jazz Central." Making a second record and participating in the Suburban Music Festival were also on the calendar. The big event of the year was the Thirty-fifth Annual Spring Concert, dedicated to Mr. James T. Hixson, who was principal of Webster in the year the band was begun. Since this time it has justly earned the reputation of one of the finest bands in the state.

For the first time in history Webster's Marching Band got out and practiced before school began this fall. This taste for hard work spilled over into new Saturday practices. The demanding ideas behind these moves were changes in the whole conception of field performances; the band has switched in emphasis from formations to precision drills. As a result the Statesmen did more marching between positions and even executed one dance step.

Rained and "mudded" out at Normandy, the band premiered at the Ferguson game, where they became the first County band to strut for television. Other exhibitions of their skill and vitality came at the Columbia, University City, and Kirkwood contests.

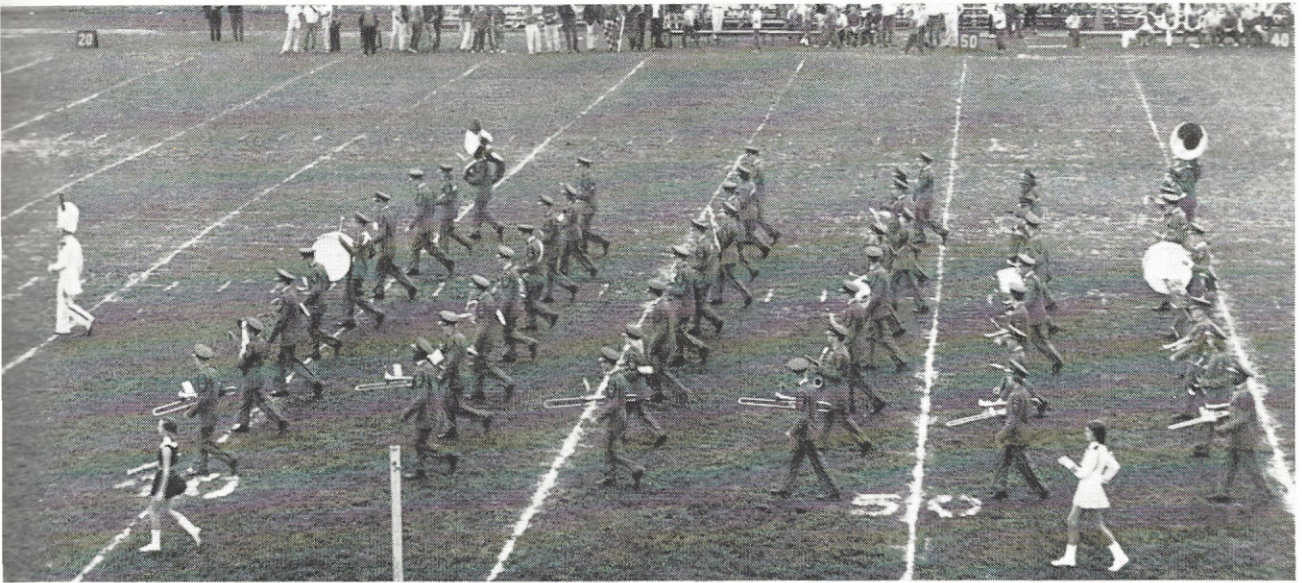

The traditional chocolate sales were spiritedly conducted this year with The Webster Echo staff. Also, the Statesmen luckily secured the top-rate band in which Mr. Lathen plays for their "Autumn Nocturne" dance.

Dance Band

With an almost entirely new group of musicians, the Dance Band, under Mr. Lathen, has built good-sounding melody and syncopation. Twice-weekly rehearsals began around Christmas, and plans were geared for the second semester. Out of the fifteen members, twelve were totally new to the Dance Band. Nonetheless, one player—our favorite drummer-boy, Jerry Tieman—was named to the All-County Dance Band for his outstanding "noise."

This band has a practice of playing with community service in mind, instead of competing with other student led dance bands. In connection with this, they gave several P.T.A.'s (including Avery, Edgar Road, and Hamsher) a sample of their work. This was the third season for this well-received idea. The agenda of the Dance Band had room for such other donations of "enjoyment through effort" as hospital entertainment.

Years ago when this type of musical organization was formed at Webster High, it was known to all as "Lower School Instrumental Music." This year the Junior Band under the direction of Mr. Walter Lathen was composed of members from grades seven through nine who met on alternate days to study the various fundamentals of music. Classes included instruction in elementary theory, tone quality, and phrasing technique, as well as the study of classical and contemporary composers.

After much preparation, the members participated in the St. Louis County Music Festival in the spring. Their appearance was graded on the general quality of the performance. Special attention was given to their technique and ability, intonation of the group, balance of instruments, and interpretation of their music.

At the close of school, they joined with older band members in the annual band picnic.

Orchestra

Music, music, music! These might well have been the passwords for the members of this year's string orchestra.

Under the direction of Mr. Boyer, the orchestra acted both jointly with and independently of the band. They combined with the band in presenting the annual Band Dance. In the spring, they once again joined with the band in competition in the St. Louis Music Festival. This festival provides opportunity for various orchestral groups throughout the county to vie with one another for top honors.

In addition to the Festival, the orchestra gave several concerts during the late winter and spring. All in all, the 1959-1960 season was a busy one for all the orchestra members.

Teamwork and spirit spell success! That was the secret used by the 1959 Orange and Black gridiron squad. And success there was too, for, under the able coaching of Mr. Ray Moss and Mr. Elwood Browning, the team battled to a first place tie with Normandy for the Suburban Big Six Championship. Many spectacular personal performances were recorded, such as the fine running of Norm Schwesig, Ray Conley, and Bill Wiseley; the great quarterbacking of Dan LeGear and Allan McArtor; and the stalwart line play of Eddie Heinrichs and Bob Trenholm. But it was the coordinated teamwork and spirit which really rolled up T.D.'s for "Big Orange." When the rolling ground attack was momentarily stopped, play shifted easily to the air for long yardage. We will remember for a long time the spirit shown in the televised Ferguson game, when Webster, down by two points shifted to an air attack and LeGear hit Schwesig for the touchdown which won the game with only seconds remaining.

The tremendous spirit which characterized Statesmen fans all year really showed up when two hundred loyal students traveled by train, clear across the state to Springfield, Missouri for the game with Parkview High School. Although Larry Hill ran back the opening kickoff the full distance for a touchdown, the Webster offense never quite clicked on the muddy field and the "Mossmen" succumbed to their first loss.

Even though the season did not have fitting close as a third quarter spurt by Kirkwood managed to hang a loss on Webster, the 1959 football squad deserves to be remembered as one of the school's fine teams.

Led by high scoring center, "Big D" Don Shannon, the 1960 basketball team achieved a very creditable record which included an early trouncing of arch-rival Kirkwood, and a televised victory over University City. Even coach Tyke Yates did not place a great deal of confidence in the squad at the beginning of the year, but by the sheer drive and teamwork which characterized the team all through the season, the Webster cagers surprised everyone. Although no starters remained from the great team of 1959, several boys developed into fine ball players. The first string of Dennis Goette, Don Shannon, Bill MacMann, Roy Sander, and Pat Corley proved a very tough combination. MacMann and Corley provided the outcourt shooting while Goette and Shannon effectively controlled the boards. The hard work paid off when Webster took second place in the rough Suburban League, losing out to St. Charles in the final minutes of a close, exciting game. The Statesmen also took second place in the regional of the state tournament when they were defeated by Kirkwood 58-56 in a very tight game. The outlook for next year is promising even though all the starters are graduating. Don Siegmund and Ron Woods displayed evidence of real ability to lead the Statesmen to another victorious season next year.

Swimming

Although not given too much publicity, the 1960 swimming team, coached by Mr. Fred Boyd, had an extremely successful season. The Statesmen swimmers copped second place in the Suburban League, losing by only five points to defending state champion Ladue. Closing the season, the shark squad took another second place, this one in the state meet, losing only to champion Ladue. Individual stars on the Webster team included Don McIntosh who broke two Suburban League records and who also broke two state records. Jack Renner and Bruce Whitney excelled in diving, and Cole Bashford did a fine job in back stroke competition. 1960 was the finest year yet for the Webster swim team which has been improving each year. Next season, several lettermen will return, and great things are to be expected from the 1961 Statesmen swim team.

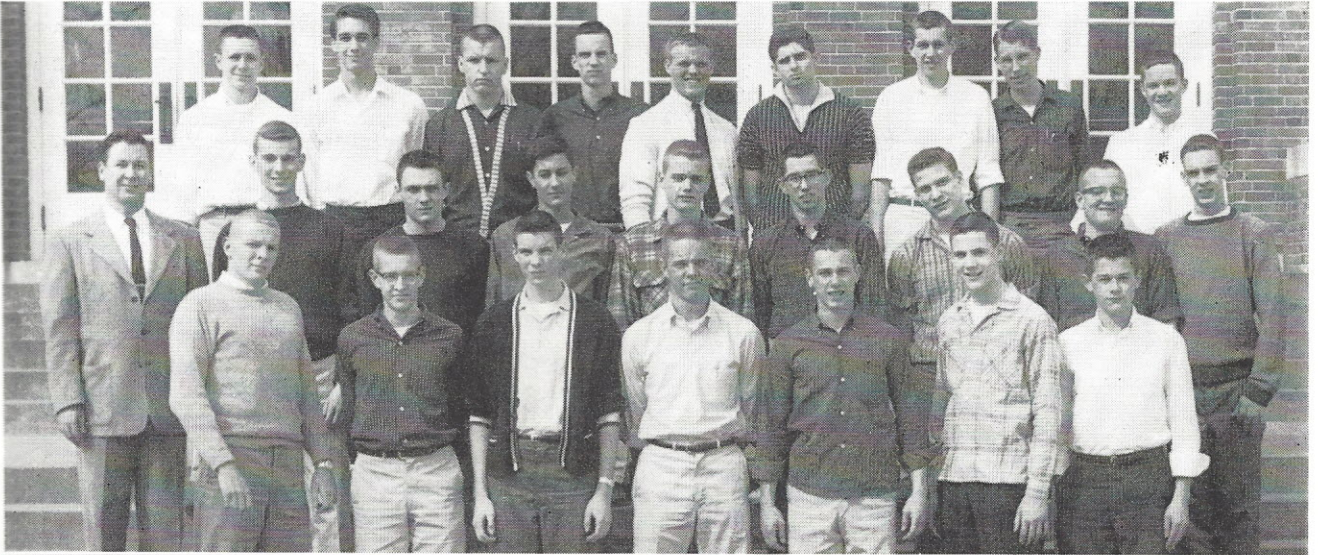

Oopsy-daisy!

The statesmen wrestling team completed another full season without serious injury and, in so doing, compiled a good won-lost record. Although lacking in depth in the lighter weight classes, Coach Leonard Bryant did a fine job, using his wrestlers to optimum advantage. In what is largely a sport of individual skills, four Webster wrestlers were good enough to compete in the state tournament, and several others placed in the district meet. Harry Stewart, who was probably the most experienced wrestler on the squad, was among those who went to the state tournament where he placed second in his weight class. Rich Jones, Jim Schroer, and Jim Weber also represented Webster at the state meet. With wrestling growing more popular each year, 1961 should see another fine Webster mat squad.

The 1959 baseball team which sported as much talent as any team previously seen at Webster had a great season capturing second place in the Surburban League. Real depth was shown by the whole team which boasted excellent hitting backed up by fine fielding. John Earnhardt earned the individual batting title with a .371 average. He was rivaled for this honor, however, by John Russell and Allan McArtor. The younger talent which was developed during the year should be a real boost to future teams for Allan McArtor, Norman Schwesig, Frank Robnett, and other returning lettermen will bolster next years team.

1959 also saw the retirement of coach Froebel Gaines who has left coaching the team after thirty-three years of working with the baseball squad. His presence will certainly be missed by future teams.

Track

The 1959 season seems to have been a successful year for all of Webster's squads including "Big Orange's" fine track team, coached by Mr. Melvin, Mr. Utz, and Mr. Browning. Although not supported quite as much as they deserved, the '59 squad turned out a creditable job. The team was greatly hampered by the lengthy absence of Barnett Reeves who injured his leg at the beginning of the season, but capable juniors stepped up into Barney's place. Very good individual records were turned in by Larry Hill, Bruce Whitney, and Tom Davis. These juniors, and sophomore, Bill Wisely, hold great promise for a terrific 1960 track squad. The Webster team won several dual meets and placed in the Normandy Tournament.

Bowling

Many of Webster High's girls sports enthusiasts flocked to Brentwood Bowling Lanes again this year. Membership in G.A.A. was the only requirement for participation in the two tournaments, one held each semester. For girls who wanted to learn to bowl or to improve their skills, a movie and special instructions were offered by the bowling alley before competition began in the fall.

Girls were divided into two groups, eight odd and eight even numbered teams, which bowled on alternating Mondays. Each team was given the opportunity to bowl against every other team in its group.

Girls not only competed for high team ratings but for high individual scores. In first semester bowling Patti McDonnell and Marilyn Culp's teams tied for first place with a four hundred and eighty-five average. Joan Rasmussen was the highest individual scorer. All individual scores above one hundred and twenty were posted on the gym bulletin board after each round.

Although not everyone was this professional a "bunch" of fun was once again provided for the G.A.A. bowlers.

Girls' basketball is divided into two sections: intramurals and coaching.

Those who sign up for intramurals participate in the five games which are set up as a tournament among the intramural teams. This year Ginny Fortnum's team took first place.

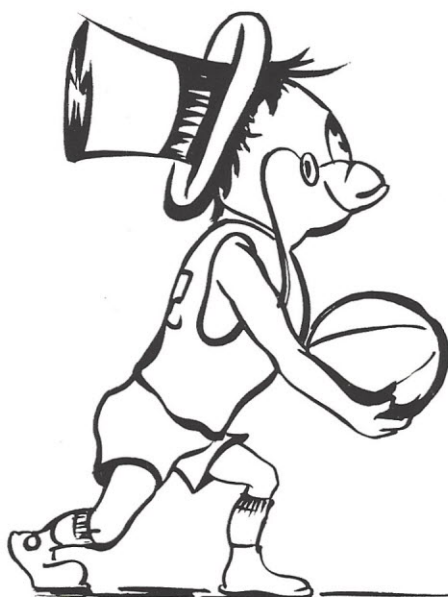

To qualify for coaching each girl must pass a basketball skill test. Those who make coaching then compete for the three class teams from the sophomore, junior, and senior grades. After the class games are over, the top basketball team, Varsity, is chosen from the three teams.

In the roster of games, the sophomore class team lost to Kirkwood, beat Maplewood, lost to Ladue, and beat Ritenour. A loss to University City and victory over Ritenour and Kirkwood, were the results of the junior teams. The senior class team, with a win over Maplewood lost to Ladue and University City, thus concluding their season.

Basketball Sports Day, held on February thirteenth, climaxed the "buckets" season. Webster and Maplewood were co-hostesses as sophomores loss to Ferguson, the junior team lost to Normandy, and the seniors beat Wellston.

These concluded a very competitive and successful year for those who participated in basketball.

Hockey

Hockey enthusiasts started out the '59-60 season early in the fall under two main divisions: coaching and intramurals.

Seventy-five girls turned out for intramurals which began in October. Each team played five games.

Coaching, held alternately at Webster field and Blackburn Park twice a week, enabled the girls to "brush up" on old and new hockey techniques while trying out for class teams. Class teams were picked for the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior grades from the fifty-seven girls who went out for coaching.

The sophomore class team lost to University City, beat Ritenour, tied Maplewood, and was rained out for the Clayton game. Junior class team standings were: a loss to University City, ties with Clayton, Ritenour, and Maplewood; rain ended the Webster-Kirkwood game. In the senior class team games, Webster tied Maplewood, and lost to Kirkwood, Ritenour, University City, and Clayton.

Outstanding girls on the three class squads were chosen to be on the Varsity hockey team. The outcome of its four games was a loss to Ritenour and Clayton, a tie with Bayless, while "showers" ended the University City game.

In spite of the weather opposition this season, the girls of all the hockey teams displayed a good record in a sport which requires co-ordination, quick thinking, exact timing, and physical endurance.

Softball

"Three strikes!"—"You're out!" shouted ambitious Webster baseball players last spring.

Games were set up among the intramural teams as well as the class teams. In the intramurals competition, the winning team was headed by Ginger Welsch. Mrs. Woods chose three class teams composed, respectively, of the sophomore, junior, and senior grades from those who participated in baseball coaching. To be in coaching, a girl had to pass a required skill test.

The sophomores lost to Kirkwood, and beat Clayton and Ritenour. The Webster junior class team defeated Clayton while a tie ended the Ritenour game, and the Kirkwood game resulted in a loss for Webster. Undefeated, the senior class team downed Kirkwood, Clayton, and Ritenour.

The Varsity team, consisting of girls who showed exceptional skill on the class teams, began its games soon after class team results came in. Although Webster lost to Ritenour and Kirkwood, the team triumphed over Clayton.

Thus another season of softball ended, leaving the '59 year with a good record for those girls who played on softball teams.

 Shingu, Schacklin, Thomann, Whaley, McDonnell, Schneider, Thorp, Thompson, Thurman, Searcy, Barbush.

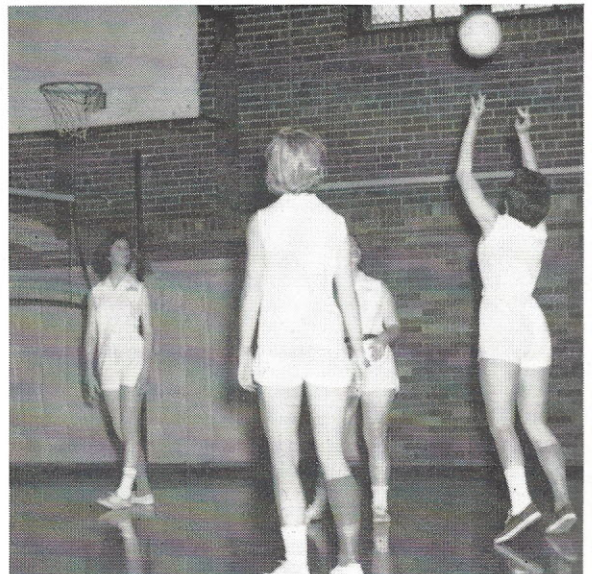

Volleyball

Holding! Let ball! Re-serve! These are the familiar cries of alert officials blaring from the girls' gym during the volleyball season each spring. This year was no different as competitive spirit and good sportsmanship prevailed.

Great emphasis was placed on the basic skills of volleyball: effective serving, spiking, and setting-up. Qualifying tests measuring agility and accuracy were given, and from many aspirants Miss Daniel and Mrs. Woods chose girls for coaching groups and then for sophomore, junior, and senior teams. These class teams played against Kirkwood, Rite-nour, and Maplewood. The varsity team, composed of the best players from each of the separate class teams, competed with Clayton, Bayless, Kirkwood, and Ladue.

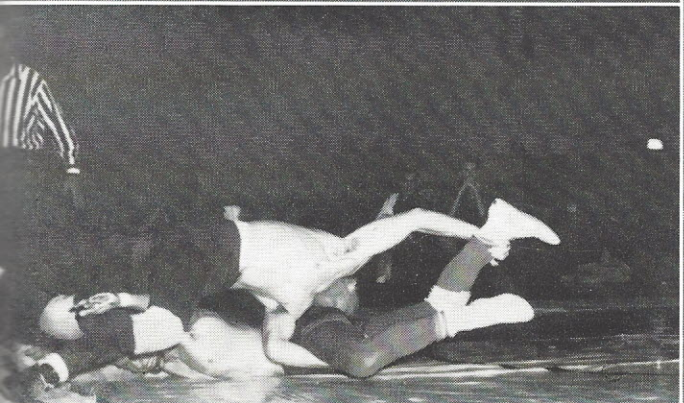

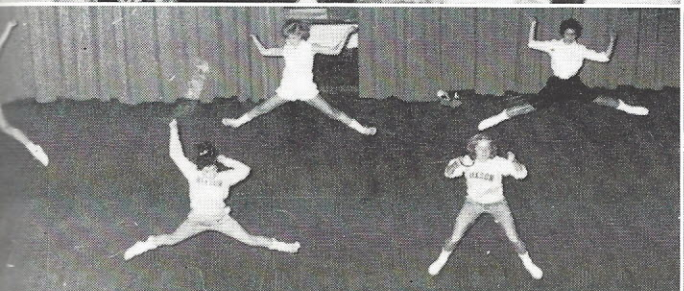

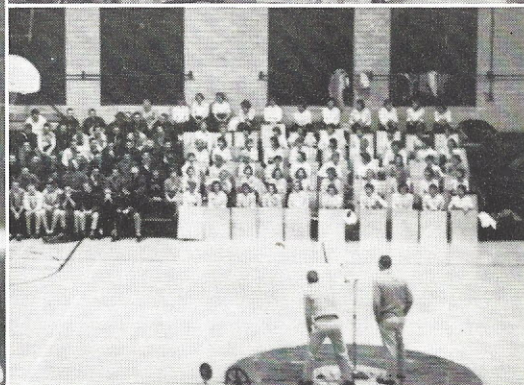

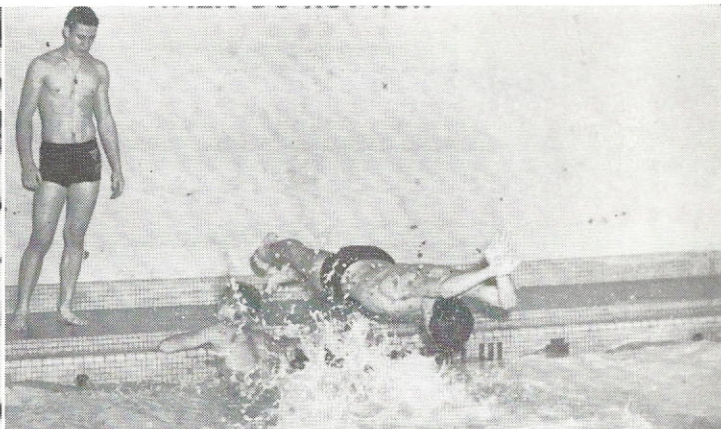

Girls who participated in the intramural division or "coaching" of this sport received 50 points toward a G.A.A. award, while those on class teams earned 100 points, and those chosen from class teams for varsity an additional 50 points.

Student scorers and timers were used for all the volleyball games. Student officials referred in the intramural division, while rated officials acted during class and varsity team games.

The James T. Hixson Award

The Hixson Award was founded to express Webster Groves High School's respect for James T. Hixson, former principal, and to honor outstanding members of each graduating class. We are now at the half-way mark of this program, instituted by the Senior Student Council in 1955 to last ten years. It has become an integral aspect of student achievement in scholarship, leadership, sportmanship, and service. Winners are announced at the annual May awards assembly. They receive engraved certificates; and their names are placed on the trophy, which remains in school possession.

These outstanding students are very carefully chosen. To be eligible for any award a senior must have at least a 2.0 scholastic average and have been at Webster Groves High School for both his junior and senior years. The Scholarship Award is granted to the highest ranking boy and girl in the senior class; in case of ties the award is given to all those qualified to win. In choosing those outstanding in Leadership and Service, five boys and five girls are nominated for each by the Senior Class. Then one boy and one girl are chosen from each list by a faculty committee. Formerly the boy who won the Roberts Trophy was given the Hixson Award for sportmanship. In 1959, however, this rule was changed by the Student Council so that the award would be available to others. Now he is chosen from the list of major letter-men and must fulfill the other qualifications for the Hixson Award. The other Sportmanship Award is given in this manner: all senior girls with at least one thousand points nominate five of their number; from these a faculty committee chooses the winner.

Sweet Dream

At the moment I am flailing my arms about in an attempt to rise above a claustrophobizing crowd of youthful humanity. It is massed in front of a large glass case, full of cornstalks; and I escape by climbing the casing and sitting on a small wooden perch. (I believe I knocked off its occupant, an animal with a look of condemnation on its bill.) The swarm below me suddenly flies off down the halls, as if by centrifugal force.

I think I am to be rescued by the little curley headed lady in the long black coat, who enters across from me, carrying a shopping bag-of-plenty. But she scoots on by, waving first at me and then at two silver-haired men who step authoritatively from a door: "Hiya! Hiya! Hiya! Would you like to have a party?"

Now I am approached by a man floating past on water wings and jauntily cocking his head at my predicament. He remarks, "I defy you to make that difficult!"

A drowsy-looking lady advances out of the darkness on my left, saying meditatively: "I don't want to put a damper on your fun, but . . ."

But I am to be actually saved by a firm-stepping fellow in a Pendelton shirt carrying a ladder. Well! He's knocked me off and tenderly replaced that . . . fowl instead.

However, now I stand before a row of judicial-type heads who chant: "Will you please be seated." I collapse in a chair. An oratorical voice towers over me: "What were you doing dashing from the annex, swathed only in a wet gym towel and slutching a copy of Literature and Life?" Echoing from somewhere a sweet feminine voice wafts in, "Hurry girls! Upstairs! Upstairs!" So I run out and up a flight of stairs.

All is bizarre and I'm trying to place myself. This must be the third floor of some institution. A procession of kiddies files from a nearby room, bearing offerings and reciting: "Whan that Aprille with . . ." I ask the lady with them where I am. She ponders and contributes, "Well, yes, perhaps, but, you know, some authorities would disagree." I am deserted.

From the next room a voice of true charm proclaims, "I want to make it perfectly clear how I feel about interlinears"

Uncomprehendingly I blunder down this passageway, not even stopping when a man in a sweat shirt grabs for me, abruptly demanding, "Where do you think you're going? This is a study hall!"

Worked to a frenzy I bolt from him directly into a woman bedecked in orange and black who has been proceeding briskly along. (Is she fifteen or forty-five?) "I—uh—was preoccupied," I offer as I rebound. She grins (fifteen) and observes definitively: "The unexamined life is not worth living—anyway," (forty-five).

I reel on from this to a decorous lady who asks leadingly, "Have you heard my strawberry story yet?"

But all of these people fade, and a woman—attractive and topped with blondness—grasps my shoulders, banging my head with her lethal purse and saying, "It's nothing personal, but . . ."

Next I discern that I am strapped to a familiar, yet unique, type of seating apparatus. There is a board of worn condition on it, but it is composed mostly of steel bars and wood splinters. Above me is a glaring U-shaped illumination. Nevertheless, I shiver as breezes and snow blow across me through cracks in the wall.

Passively I must submit to a series of parading faces and footsteps. They inscribe their pronouncements upon me indelibly:

A smiling crew-cut man passing out a test as his bow-tie bobs: "I don't want to be unfair, but . . ."

A tall man with a reagent bottle in his hand: "Carry on futher, class."

A little old lady at a lecturn: "That's a perfect example of a passive periphrastic in indirect statement supply esse."

A tall romantic male at the blackboard: "Well, this problem didn't work out well, did it class?"

A petite young lady popping across my view in a sprightly manner: "You don't have to be so picaYUNish!"

A slow-speaking man pausing at the stand: "The plain fact is, just thought I'd tell you a little joke to wake you all up."

"Great joke," I am thinking, as he grins slyly at me. A woman with her coat and a purple bucket-shaped hat on is coming toward me with a knife. "You aren't afraid of me, are you?" she asks. As she severs my bonds I fall free. A very kindly lady speaking in short-hand helps me to my feet and pushes me firmly out of the room, saying, "Neither rain, nor snow, nor sleet shall keep you from your homework."

I am swept up in the sea which seems to ebb and flow within these walls. Half-conscious, I am carried to where it yells and sings incoherently: "O Come All Ye Faithful," and "Iron 'em out," and "Cartwheel, Cartwheel!" and "Long live Dylan Thomas!"

Thence its irresistible force flows on, and I am on the crest; I am soon deposited outside in a snowdrift (The blizzard of '60).

Jolted by a steady clanging, I find that I must now leap from the white drift of my sack; erase my Vergil book; and, finally, turn it in.

Dear Marsha,

Hi cutie! Well! you're finally in your last year of high school. Hoorah! Aren't you glad?

I can think of millions of things to say but when it comes to writing in The Echo I can't. So

I'll say the same old thing.

Don't Mind --

Well, here we are almost finished with the whole thing with less for getting to know you in typing. Best of luck in all that you do. Best of luck in I'm not going to write more because it always sounds so lids.

Love you,

Autographs

Dear Martha,
 I know each other just a few short weeks, I've really had some good times with you. I'll never forget the Senior Prom, or the trampolining. I hope to see a lot of you this summer. It will be interesting to get together with all the kids next Christmas and see what's happened to all of them. Gate of luck with your job and boy friends. (You'll probably meet someone you like and get married.)

Love ya
