PROPHET GETS BROADCAST

WALTERBORO HIGH ON
THE AIR

Pupils Scattered Over the Globe Doing Big Things For Themselves

Of all the inventions, I think the radio is the most pleasing. Think of being able to sit in your living room and listen to concerts from all parts of the world. Then, too, valuable news can be brought to one through this invention.

Just the other day, January 3, 1940, I picked up a "Radio news" and noticed that on a certain night "Who's Who and Why" in the class of 1934 of Walterboro High School would broadcast from station XYZ, Charleston, South Carolina. Anxious to know what had become of my classmates in the past six years, I made it a point to get said station.

I was very much amused and surprised at some of the things I heard. Ruth Drawdy and Willie Mae Buchanan had organized a "Snooper Bureau," the object of which is to attend to everybody's business except their own.

Marzie Bennett had become more famous as a dancer than Madame Paavola and she has her own theatre in New York City.

The Latin Department of Walterboro High School had grown so that Miss Lena Reed felt a dire need of an assistant, so Miss Helen Benton was elected to this important position.

Lucas Padgett, as director of a jazz orchestra, had surpassed Paul Whiteman in importance.

Lena Mae Crosby and Roberta Breland had cultivated a curious grass which, when chemically treated, is made into switches, curls, and puffs for the bobbed haired girls. I understand they have made quite a fortune out of this.

Sherrell Blocker was a millionaire lawyer in Reno. He made a fortune listening to the misfortune of others. Evelyn O'Brien had been elected a member of the legislature from her district and the only thing she did was to introduce and have passed the bill to have all bachelors taxed heavily.

Johnnie Gibson and Gladys Fender have devoted their time to writing love letters for these "bachelor-taxed-dodgers." The tax was so heavy that drastic means had to be taken to evade this law, and many turned to Misses Gibson and Fender in frantic appeal to assist them in securing wives.

Mary Frapp had become a character reader. She reads your character by the tone of your voice. She invented an instrument which registers certain qualities when you speak.

Henry Stokes was dean in an elite school of expression in California.

Bernice Breland had at last realized the height of ambition. She

HISTORY OF THE SENIOR CLASS

Members Made Many Outstanding Records During Their School Life

Our present senior class began its school career in 1923 with Miss Ruth Brown as teacher. Of the number that started only seven remain to graduate with the class. They are: Vera Gruber, Claud Hiott, Lucas Padgett, Gene Price, Margaret Hayden, Elizabeth Koger, and Herman Walter.

In the school year of 1923-24 Mr. W. H. Ward was made superintendent of the city schools to replace Mr. J. Clay Williams. In that year Marzie Bennett joined our class.

At the beginning of our third year four additions were made. They were Mary Carn Fishburne, Beverly Skardon of Louisiana, Henry Stokes of Round and Ruby Towles. Sherrell Blocker joined our class in our fourth year.

During our fifth year Mary Va. McDaniel of Augusta, Ga., and Helen Haws of New York enrolled in our class.

In the sixth grade Mae Elizabeth Fendall and Jo Swett joined us.

It was during our seventh year that we stood the county-wide examinations. Some of our classmates dropped behind and a good many from the class above joined us. They were: Ned Riddle, Harley Saunders, Harris Sweat, George Walker, Lula Willis, Willie Mae Buchanan, Alice Glover.

When we finished grammar school we turned our faces toward high school with new hopes, ambitions, and with a determination to get all we could out of high school. All summer and fear had increased so until we were almost ready to believe anything.

The largest addition to our class was made when we reached the eighth grade, the first year in high school. That year Johnnie Gibson of Roadside, Luella and Pearl Givens of Sniders, Evelyn Gruber of Bridge School, Stephen Hiott of Wolfe Creek, George Linder and Reece Kinard of Stokes, Allison Marvin, Bula Hickman, Mazie Smith and Louise Hickman of Green Pond, Janie Hill of Cottageville, Miriam Mears of Jacksonboro, Evelyn O'Brien of Beaufort, Virginia Ulmer of Bethel, Helen Benton and Roberta Breland of Benton Mill, Bernice Breland and Lena Mae Crosby of Tabor, Doris Bailey of Canady's, joined us.

In our ninth year three more joined us. They were: Hayes Sadler, Anne Sanders of Florence, and Eugenia Ponds of Ehrhardt. In that year we took an active part in athletics. Several boys played basketball, football, and baseball and one girl was on the basketball team.

Two more joined us in our tenth year, Alicia Smith of Cottageville and Gladys Fender of Canady's. Again an active part in all athletics was taken by our classmates.

As we approached our senior year Harold Risher of Canady's, Mary Frapp, Violet Bartha of Rock Hill, and Mary E. Hooker of Beaufort enrolled in our class. We have the pleasure of using the Field House during our senior year for the first time as it was built the last of the preceding year.

MANY STARS IN OPERETTA

SPECIAL LIGHTING AND SCENERY BEAUTIFUL

Opened With Moon-lit Prologue

Fifty Students in the Chorus

Only "once in a blue moon" is an excellent performance given as was presented by the cast and choruses of the operetta "Once in a Blue Moon" last Friday evening.

Every part was a star part and every scene a thing of beauty. The large stage with its attractive scenery provided a fitting setting for the prologue and acts. The special scenery and sky drops were made by Mr. Ward, Mr. Byrd, and the shop class, the costumes of "Moon Lady," the attendants and the Spanish dancers were made by girls of home economics department. Everybody was interested and the entire faculty and student body gave such assistance as was needed whenever called upon.

The operetta opened with a moon lit prologue, sung by the girls and boys. This was beautiful indeed with its starry heavens, blue moon, shimmering Moon Lady, and the lovely chorus girls and boys and blue flood lights.

The story, full of action, romance, intrigue, unexpected situations, final happy solution, was next presented.

The mournful widow, the French maid, Hop Sing, the Chinese servant, Skylark Roams the detective, and oh, just everybody played and sang well as was testified by the large appreciative audience that attended the first entertainment given by the school in the Field House.

Special mention is made by all of Harley Saunders, as George Taylor, the hero, who showed unusual histrionic ability as he played with Henry Stokes as Sylvia the heroine, excellent as in her part.

The operetta was directed by Miss Marguerite Williams and Mrs. H. E. Thomas. These are to be congratulated on the brilliant success of this event.

SCHOOL LIFE

It has been said that when a man no longer looks forward to anything and lives aimlessly he is worthless. Thus, we are to believe that every worthwhile man has a definite aim and purpose ahead and enjoys working forward to this. The average student in a similar way is always looking forward to see pleasant expectations fulfilled. During school he looks forward to holidays and vacation. When vacation comes he looks forward to the opening of school in the fall.

A while before school is out the student becomes tired of school and wants vacation to hurry and come. It is spring and nature shows beauty the equal of which no other season has. The student wants to get out in the open, away from school and books and enjoy the vacation. For a short time he enjoys everything to its fullest extent, but before long he begins to get tired of the hot summer days and longs for school to begin. This proves the saying that nothing is ever as good as the expectations. By September the glories of nature are about to fade away and the idea of school seems more interesting.

Soon after school begins, the pupil becomes restless and thinks of holidays again.

If such a life could go on forever, it would be ideal. When the pupil gets tired of one thing another comes to take its place. But the time comes when he graduates from school and school life becomes a thing of the past filled with pleasant memories.

Our vacation will soon be here. The members of the senior class will have finished their course in school and will be experiencing the last vacation from school. Perhaps they will have better vacations from college after having been away from home nine months except for a day or two, but they will not be the same as vacations from school.

Mr. Frick: "Well, you can't expect me to hear it rattle 'way up here."

Four winters we worked; four summers we played.
Each one of these years we made a new grade.
Four years of happiness and joy out of life.
In our class to keep up sometimes was strife,
But now that we've won and are through
We are happy, but yet again blue
To leave all our pals and good friends behind,
And bid good-bye to our faculty so kind.

Our carefree school days are now all gone,
And we go into the world like ones newly born.
All things so different and quite new around—
New things to our eyes, to our ears new sound.
Different ideas of people and of their lives
And we find out that we're not at all really wise.
We have to ourselves adjust to their tide.
And work very hard and follow their guide.

Very few of us will in the same paths tread;
Some will be rich, others earn only bread,
But always remember wherever you are—
Whether rich, poor, president or Czar,
That we are all classmates of one brotherhood,
Sometimes if in a classmate want is felt
And to one another we're all just as good
Each one of us will gladly help.

Now that we're through and are going away
We want to you Juniors just to say,
And to all the others who will follow behind
That we hope while in school you will surely find Something to carry out on life's great span—
Something that will where death sweeps her hand,
Make you believe that you've done your part
And that you will have a place in each heart.

d become the wife of an Episcopal ctor and had devotedly given up r life to the duties of the parish.
Mary Virginia McDaniel had found a school of penmanship. It is called a "McDaniel Method." This pop-ar method has been adopted in all schools of the United States and s done much for the world at large.
Reece Kinard was a prima donna, extremely popular in the "Radio
orld," and has sung for the owned heads.

Vera Gruber had always had a hard e with her lessons in school, but e finally overcome all difficulties, r now her life is a "bed of roses."
e married a florist.

Beverly Skardon, who had always en the light that lit the class, is ill spending his time and efforts attempting to be a "fighter." He scovered some undeveloped land and th the assistance of a large water ll built a large power plant to ght up that part of the world.

Jo Sprott married a real country
d and is now the charming mistress a farm. This was a surprise as s was decidedly the most frivolous rl in our class.

Bradford Wichman had become the ficient editor of "The State," published in Columbia, South Carolina.
Luelle and Pearle Givens, through e six years, had stuck to their lofty eals, for now they were both ach-ets for sky-scrapers.

Mae Elizabeth Tindall married a uck farmer, and entered into the irit of the life by writing articles r her county newspaper on "Why a vegetarian."

Ruby Towles and Pearle Fennell e now employed by Van Horn and company, famous costumers, to de-gn costumes for Shakespeare's ays and of olden periods.

Harold Risher had been elected as eriff of Colleton County and had ointed Herman Walter as his nny.

Harris Sweet and Hayes M. Sader, out of their brilliant heads, had vented a "tickling machine," pri-arily for soothing the nerves of gs and cats, but became so successful that it is being used by human begs.

Janie Hill and Miriam Mears, la-enting the fact that Walterboro igh School teachers were so strict r their grading, had founded a school r training teachers in this field of t, much to the joy of the present alterboro High School student body.

When Alicia Smith finished col-ge, she accepted the position of me economics teacher in the Walterboro High School. She liked the own and its people so well that she still specializing there in home eco-mics—but not in the High School.

Mazie Smith and Margaret Hay-n are spending three days out of ch week going from town to town aking speeches on "Yeast for ealth."

Lula Willis, our beloved president f the Senior Class, is still holding e office of a president, but this e is president of the International elations Club.

Mary Carn Fishburne and Louise ickman have combined their talents nd have set up a school in "Get hin to Music." Mary Carn fur-ished the music while Louise directs e exercises.

Violet Bartha became so proud of er voice that on one occasion she ade the statement that she would arry nothing less than the Prince f Wales, consequently she passed up er numerous chances and is now eeping house for her bachelor broth-r.

Gene Price is the dignified, distinguished, honored Judge of a Ciruit Court.

You cannot imagine how proud it ade me feel to learn that so many f my classmates had been elected to ublic offices. Why there was Alson Marvin, mayor of the Metropolis of Walterboro. Allison's platform the race for mayor was "better hools for the town and high wages
r the teachers."

Harley Saunders was director of the famous Melody Aces orchestra.
While some of the other members were Claud Hiott, George Walker, and Haskell Hiers.

Early news dispatches today from St. Andrews, Scotland, tells how the brilliant young professional, Edward Spencer Riddle, better known to his friends as "Ned," toured the difficult wind-blown course in the final match of the British open championship in five under par, defeating his opponent, the veteran Gene Sarazen, to win the most sought after prize in the world of golfdom. When the news reached Walterboro, S. C., his home town, all the old timers could be seen to sit back and nod their heads with an "I told you so" expression.

Steven Hiott who read a book each day in high school is now writing them almost as fast. He says, "Give 'em books, let 'em read!"

George Linder, that lover of problems of democracy, is now assisting in the solution of these problems in the halls of congress. We all are happy to "let George do it" for us.

Helen Haws delights her audiences as she plays behind the footlights in the big new theatre that has just opened in New York. Her success then is only the beginning they say.

The "Carolina Lassies Quartet," composed of Mary Elizabeth Hooker, Elizabeth Koger, Eugenia Ponds and Virginia Ulmer, stopping over on a town, closed the program of XYZ with the Alma Mater of the old school. Tears came to my eyes as I recalled the happy days and the dear classmates at W. H. S., but I rejoiced that so many of my classmates were happy in their various homes, work, and professions.

BULA HICKMAN,
Prophet.
