

FORE WORD

Tomorrow holds something different for each of us. The success of our tomorrow depends on how well we prepare ourselves today. Our high school years are the most important years of our lives. During this time we not only learn facts and theories, but we form ideals and goals.

Each day we learn new things. We learn from books and teachers, from friends and strangers and from everyone we come in contact with.

Through our experiences with life, we enter a larger more complex world with the feeling that we know exactly what we want and how to get it. May our past experiences and our present goals guide us in our Search of Tomorrow.
