

FULL ALREADY? Teachers chat in the Home Economics Room after their Christmas dinner sponsored by Future Homemakers of America.

NEEDS SALT! Darlene Drayton and Brenda McMillan enjoy their meal after serving the teachers.

The coming of Christmas brought many preparations and activities. This year a new tradition was started with the FHA sponsoring a Christmas banquet for the teachers. Much preparation was made and the dinner was a success.

The chorus presented a Christmas concert Sunday afternoon, December 15th at the Hampton Street Auditorium. Several nights, Sunday afternoons and classtimes were spent rehearsing for the program. The auditorium was filled with parents, former students and other followers of the chorus. As usual Mrs. Buckner did a great job and the program was wonderful.

A float represented the Colleton County Education Association in the annual Jaycee Christmas Parade. Students from the school system rode and the float won first prize.

The yearbook staff sponsored their annual Powder-puff game on December 17th. There was much difficulty getting the girls together for practice because the football season lasted one extra week. The first idea was to have the Juniors play the Seniors and the Sophomores play the Freshman. The Senior girls seemed uninterested in practice. Every day the number lessened and in the end Peggy Truluck was the only Senior that played. The Juniors and Seniors played the Sophomores and Freshmen and the weather was freezing. The game ended with a 6-6 tie with Joy Nettles scoring for the Junior-Senior team. Kathy Boensch made the Sophomore-Freshman TD. It was not too rough a game but really a lot of fun.

The Afro-American Club sponsored a Christmas dance in the gym during lunch. Records were played of all the current hits. Money made on the dance was used to fund the clubs projects.
