

Friends Are for All Time

One of the best things a person could have had was a friend: someone to discuss problems with, to confide in about a special person, or to plan parties or excursions with. Friendship was an integral part of life in school. The camaraderie shared by those of similar interests was evident in many groups around the campus. Football players clowned around during classes and college football fans aggravated teachers with team prejudices. The lively cut-ups in every class provided uproarious fun and laughter during those days. Quiet friendships were developed between those less extroverted, too.

If only we can retain the friendships of old and obtain new ones, what a life it will be.

Wes White offers a new perspective on the image of WHS students.

Gregarious pals Jackie Ramsey, Robbie Robertson, Bill Burch, and Paul Walker cast various expressions for our photographer.

Friends Mark Herrin, Rose Mary Kelly, Hermene Nettles, and Peggy Truluck procrastinate in the hall the day of the Homecoming Game.

During the lunch break Gordon Clark and Jean Bishop discuss the arrangements for the Homecoming Skit.

