

Our Dress takes a Change

Above: New Kiss member Leroy Murdaugh. Wonder if he sings?

Slob, a sloppy or gross person. It doesn't sound good, but it could be interesting. And it was!

During Spirit Week at Walterboro High, Slob Day proved to be the biggest laugh of the year. Not only did the students participate, but even the teachers. Young men wore dresses, young ladies wore suits older than they were, and the teachers wore clothes that could have dated back to the War of Independence!

First there were the glimpses you caught when you passed them in the halls. Next the chance you got to sit behind that person who wore a pair of torn purple pants with one tennis shoe, and one muddied boot, a green spotted shirt with ketchup and mustard on it, and last but not least a red wig. If it didn't catch your attention it caught the teachers'!

Then at lunch it was the parade of Slobs. Yes, boys slobs, girls slobs, and students that did such a good job they could have passed for either. The judges had their chance to sit back and enjoy.

First there was Almond Davis who has been participating in slob days ever since the sixth grade. And his years of experience sure payed off because he won first place in the contest.
