

WE MAKE ONE YEAR LAST FOREVER

Everyone knows what it's like to play football or to be in the band, but what is it like to be on the yearbook staff? Is it fun or is it just a pain in the neck? Well, just like being on the football team or in the band, it takes work! And if you think about it you start with the basics. Learning to write stories, take pictures with a 35mm camera, and drawing layouts. Lots and lots of layouts, some only for one page and others for five pages or more. But you can't stop there. You have to index the names of the students in various photographs, and type all the stories. All of this (if not done right) could create a problem and slow down the process. The thing that could really make or break the yearbook is teamwork or the lack of it! No team, whether professional or amateur could function properly without teamwork. And the yearbook is no exception. Working together just seems to come natural to this year's members. If one person finishes their specific job, they would naturally help someone else. This relieves some of the pressure that comes with the responsibility and the intense effort of wanting to produce a yearbook that will meet with the schools approval. Not an easy task, but very well worth it.

The pressure and the work sounds hard but there is other students, we know what is going to be in the book, and most of all we take part in something that people will have for the rest of their lives. The memories, the sporting events, the beauty queens, and the people who gave us a helping hand, the teachers. Although we do not receive the recognition we should, we still strive to produce a yearbook that will not only make the staff proud but the school and community as well. The only way that we can achieve our goals is to have total support from all the students and teachers. This years staff would like to thank you for your support and we hope it will continue in future years.

Richard Koger

