

Riddick Tuten, Walterboro, South Carolina, The Citadel, Neilson Electronics, Electricity-Voc.

Virginia vonLehe, Andrews, South Carolina, Winthrop College, English IV and French I.

James Walker, Cottageville, South Carolina, Clemson University, Masonry I & II.

Francis Whittington, Latta, South Carolina, Allen University, S.C. State College, Social Studies.

Deloris W. Williams, Greenpond, South Carolina, Claflin and S.C. State Colleges, Howard University, Atlanta University, University of S.C., General Science, Math, Reading.

Eliza Bright Williams, Walterboro, South Carolina, Claflin College, Physical Science.

A COACH WHO KNOWS THE SCORE

Mr. Jerry P. Seale, basketball coach at Walterboro High has been working with our basketball teams for five consecutive years.

He first became interested in basketball at age six. He played with the midget team at an early age in his hometown, Fayetteville, North Carolina. He played in his high school, E.E. Smith Senior High, and went on to play at Fayetteville State University for four years. He played Pro ball with the Virginia Squires along with Julius Erving, Bob Dandridge, Earl Monroe, and Michael Gale. Coach Seale scored an average of twenty points per game. He feels that the hardest team for the Squires to beat was San Antonio, but they still finished the season in the top three teams. Coach Seale's career was ended because of a knee injury that he received in college football.

The coach also teaches at Baptist College. He feels that recruiting the players is the most important part of coaching. "At Baptist College, you've got to mold the personality of each player because you have people coming from all over," Coach Seale says. He also stresses that students cannot place sports before academics.

Being a coach and an Assistant Principal takes a lot of time, so Mr. Seale has to juggle a lot of problems.