

Extra Programs

"I am for extra-curricular programs because it breaks the same old routine day in and day out," said Judy Holliday. What would school be like without football, basketball, baseball, etc. . . . Mary M. Johnson stated that it is a great addition after school. Just think a school without any extra-curricular programs. There would be nowhere to go on Friday nights, no pep rallies, no chorus concerts, school would just be no fun. "It enables students to get more from their educational experiences. It provides students an opportunity to engage in fun-filled activities," said Vera Bodison. Extra-curricular programs should always be kept in schools. Some people think that students spend too much time in extra programs and not enough time in the books but that is not necessarily true. "I think extra-curricular activities are very important. It makes the students well-rounded a little work and a little play because too much work and no play makes Jack and Sue very dull people," said Catherine Robbins.

Pausing for a pose, Luvonia Chisolm prepares to write a library pass.

Showing the students what to do in P.E. class, is Lizzie Hayes.

Adding spice to her economics class, Frances Whittington points out important definitions for the day's lesson.
