

While focusing their attention on a movie, Jenny Robbins and Mandy Williams spend a weekend indoors. Mandy played the clarinet in the Band of Blue, and Jenny was a member of WHS Sing-

TUNED IN TO WEEKENDS!!!

What was the reward for spending five days hard at work in the classroom, staying up late studying, and getting up much too early in the mornings for school? Weekends!!!

When Fridays rolled around, students could be counted upon to be active in many different things. Going to the movies, playing sports, working, partying, or just "bumming" around with a few friends took top priority.

Weekends also allowed students some much-needed time to catch up on homework or finish up assignments that had been put off until the last minute.

"Now that I am in an AP class this year, I'm studying on the weekends more than I ever thought I would," said junior Farrior Langley.

Some students left town on the weekends as a way to relax and have some fun. By doing this, students had new experiences in a different environment. Meeting new people was also a good part of going out of town for the weekend.

"The best part of going out of town on the weekends was the new people that I met and the friends that I made," said junior Chris Fortner.

But most students stayed in town to attend parties with their friends. At parties, students could open up and be themselves. They escaped worries about school or other problems for a few hours and just had fun.

"Parties were the best part of the weekend and the time that everyone looked forward to most," said junior Inglis Mangum.

Brandy Guffey, Kimbe Carter, and Linda Smith laugh with their church youth director, Mary Ida Buzhardt. Going to church activities was a popular way for some students to spend their weekends.

Going to a movie at the Ivanhoe Theater was also a good way for students to relax. Ivanhoe usually carried a good selection of the current releases. Students went to see movies as couples, with two or three friends, or sometimes even in a large group of friends. Going to see a movie was also a great alternative activity when other plans fell through at the last minute.

"It's great finally to have somewhere to go in Walterboro on the weekends when there are no parties or major social events," said junior Jenny Robbins. "It also saves gas money by not having to drive all the way to Charleston just to see a movie."

— Karen Beach