

A WHOLE NEW LOOK

Even though tickets were sold the week of the prom, preparations started in November. Mrs. Cindy Sarvis sponsored the Junior Class, which was responsible for fundraising and decorations.

The lack of funds triggered an explosion of money-making opportunities. These included a jewelry sale, a doughnut sale, and a Prom fashion show. After all the money was collected, the monstrous task of deciding the theme and decorations was to begin. The Junior Class decorating committee decided on "A Whole New World" for the theme, which was derived from the movie ALADDIN.

decided on "A Whole New World" for the theme, which was derived from the movie ALADDIN.

Bernadette Lee constructs a mural for the 1993 Junior-Senior Prom. The mural in the front lobby depicted a desert oasis.

The decorating committee also came up with the idea of a desert scene and masking the gym as an Arabian castle.

"If I survive this one, I'll die a happy woman," said Mrs. Layton during a hectic afternoon of decorating.

The Junior Class was involved with the mass transformation of the gym. Other help was Ms. Sally Searson and her students.

"The work was hard," said sophomore Jerry O'Conner, "but I enjoyed getting the experience. I'm totally prepared for next year."

Charleston Mobile Music was hired to entertain. Decorations were finally completed by 5:00 P.M. just before the festive event began. All was ready for that evening's events.

— Elizabeth Cattles

As Ms. Cathy Layton, decoration chairperson, gives instructions, Ms. Bernice Winn attentively listens. Ms. Winn was advisor for the Modeling Club.

