

Portrait of A New Generation

A portrait cannot capture everything about a moment, just as this book has not captured everything about the 1992-93 school year. Each individual has his or her own unique memories, both good and bad. It is up to each to remember the excitement of winning the big game, the thrill of meeting that "special someone," the relief of getting a passing grade, the tension in the air before exams, the disappointment of losing a match, the embarrassment of falling down in the middle of the commons during lunch, the pain of a big break-up or the bittersweet feelings at graduation. Of these memories the new generation was made.

— Bramlett Easterlin

After commencement exercises Lawton Smith embraces his long-time friend Brian Gwin. The two have known each other since kindergarten.