

Read 'em and weep. Matt Hill, Jerry Tillman, Richard Haley, and Kevin Varnadoe exhibit their card-playing prowess during their lunch period. These "card sharks" found that playing cards relieved some of the tension of classes.

Was that a foul? Refereeing an intramural basketball game, junior Michael Salley blows his whistle to signal a call. Michael also played drums in the Band and was a member of the varsity basketball team.

Release . . . rotation . . . Bryan Davis and Chris Teasdel watch the ball fly as Richmond Ford releases his shot. Many students did not mind giving up their lunch periods to play sports.

