

Just The Way We Like it

By balancing school, sports, and after-school work, students made time to socialize. In school and out of school, students participated in various activities.

Different seasons brought about different events.

Homecoming in the fall matched the prom in the spring. Partying with friends and keeping up with all the latest trends went hand-in-hand. When most of the school-year activities and holiday festivities were over, students looked on to new experiences. Spring break, Rice Festival, and graduation quickly passed by.

Cut it Out. Senior Carl Hamlin and foreign exchange student Dietmut Lewin work on their wooden cutouts for an art sculpture. Besides her native German, Dietmut spoke several other languages.

No matter what the event, time, or place, it had the potential for being memorable — just the way we like it.

— Muriel Fryar

