

LET'S GO OUT

Together

L ove and romance bloomed during the school year. All around students carried torches in their hearts.

Many students were seen holding hands and having amorous conversations in the hallways. "It doesn't phase me," said sophomore Kelly Ferguson, referring to open displays of affection.

Many different views on dating existed in the 90's. "It's very thought invoking," said senior Alicia Williams. "You have to think about who you're dating and their intentions. You also have to consider his feelings toward you and your feelings toward him."

Many students agreed with this point of view. "Sometimes when guys get a decent girl, they don't know how to treat them with the love they claim to have," said Nadine Sweeny.

Females are not the only ones who find it difficult to find a faithful mate. "There are a lot of cheating females at this school," said Dedrick Owens.

Couples find many enjoyable places to go. When teacher Melanie Coombs was with her boyfriend, she got her "groove" on at Desparado's and later settled for a hot meal at Applebee's.

Many found that hanging out with their friends was just as fun as being with a date. "It's fun to chill with a homey sometimes," said senior Jamone Blake.

— Mikelle Thomas

Senior Trish Sapp and junior Columbo Walker watch anxiously at a basketball game. Trish and Columbo were one of the many longtime couples seen around.

