

What does Homecoming mean to you?

"Tradition!"

"Homecoming is when I can see some of my friends who have gone off to college."

Ready to Win. The Bulldogs charge through a banner at the homecoming game. They won against the North Charleston Cougars.

Hold That Line! Chris Teasdale, Joe Adams, Corey Bowman, and Fredrick Jenkins tackle an opponent. Nothing was getting by their defense!

Take a Break. During a break, Stephanie Beals and Debbie Driggers talk to a friend. The band was an important part of all the football games.

A Night to Remember

A week of preparation turned into . . .

The whole school's spirits soared, and the air was buzzing with excitement. The football team practiced hard, knowing that they had to play their best. The band warmed up, ready to show everyone what they were really made of.

"Winning the Homecoming Game was great," said senior Jamaal Hudson, "because we knew North Charleston was a good team. It boosted our confidence and pulled us together as a team." The Homecoming Game is one of the most important of the year, so the unstoppable Bulldogs played their best.

The Bulldogs were not the only students that were nervous that night. Eight nominees for the Homecoming Court awaited the results with excitement and anticipation. Angela Tedder was Miss Freshman, and Danielle Whitacre was runner-up. Miss Sophomore was Keesha Radcliff, and La-toya Fryar came in second. April Pierce was Miss Junior while Ericka Tedder was runner-up. Kim Hicks, a senior, came in second, and Elissia Rutledge was delighted to be crowned Homecoming Queen.

"I like Homecoming," said senior Spencer Breland, "because my friends and I can show a lot of school spirit without making fools of ourselves."

From the beginning of Spirit Week to the end of the game, the experience was one students would not soon forget.
