

What would your ideal job be?

"My ideal job would be a pediatrician. I like to work with children and medicine."

— Shaunisha Grant

"My ideal job would be to become the first woman pilot to fly in combat. I would really love to be able to fly my own attack plane."

Big on the Pig. Juniors Justin Shearer and Aaron Zelmer are assisted by a co-worker at Piggly Wiggly. Several students found jobs at this particular grocery store.

Taking' It E-Z. Senior Kyle Stroble rings up a customer at the E-Z Shop. Kyle was a member of the WHS Singers, and enjoyed playing the guitar in his spare time.

Hot or Mild Sauce? Senior Rashaud Yates stays busy taking orders at Taco Bell. Taco Bell was one of the most popular places to eat for students.

Minimum Wage

Hard work; Long hours paid

Working after school and during weekends was a top priority for many students. While work was optional for some students, others did not have a choice.

"I have to work to pay for college," said junior Shelena Jenkins.

Jobs ranged from working in small, local stores to working in the fast-food chains. Many students earned their money working at local grocery stores.

Although extra money for those nights off was a definite plus for some students, work was an inconvenience for others.

"There really are not many disadvantages with working except not being able to go out with my friends," said junior Aaron Youmans.

Work taught students responsibility and respect. Earning money gave them a sense of independence, and having their own money instead of asking parents for it was a great motivator.

"There are several advantages to having a job. The most obvious would be making the extra money," said senior Holly Lucas. "It has also taught me a great deal of responsibility and has given me the opportunity to meet more people."
