

"Jr/Sr weekend was a blast! Our house was a lot of fun, because all of us are great friends. I can't wait until next year."

— Erin Davis

Cruisin'. Riding in their limo, Katrina Lemacks and Jeremy Carter arrive at the beach in style. The couple enjoyed spending all weekend together.

Beach Bums. Jenna Crouch, Amy Hefner, and Christy Edwins hang out at their beach house. All of the friends went in and got a house together for the weekend.

Beach Nights. Taking a walk on the beach, junior Joey Fraiser picks up some seashells. Walks on the beach with that special someone was a popular activity.

Ain't Goin Down

'til the sun comes up!

After dancing all night, the majority of the student body headed down to Edisto Beach for a weekend of fun, relaxation, and partying. Students planned for the big weekend all year long. Everyone was excited about the biggest party of the year.

"A bunch of friends and I rode to the beach in a limo after prom," said junior Rebecca Corbett. "It was great!"

Even though most students didn't reach the beach until after midnight, the parties were kickin' and would be until Monday. The days were spent cruisin' the strip, dropping in on houses, and catching some rays. The nights were spent searching for "the party." Students loaded up and drove around looking for all the cars and people they knew.

"There wasn't really a big party this year," said sophomore Christy Edwins. "Everyone sort of did their own thing, but we had a lot of people at our house all day and night."

All too soon Monday came. After all the cleaning was done and the cars packed everyone headed back to the 'Boro to recover. However, a few who didn't mind the sleep deprivation stuck around to get a little extra sun before returning home. No matter what, Jr/Sr weekend at the beach was full of good times and memories.

— Alicia Shelley