

Nothing to Hide. If all of you learned one thing this year, it was that you had nothing to hide. After becoming acquainted with the high school atmosphere, you freshmen learned to let the "real" you show. Others of you became more involved in sports and extra-curricular activities, allowing people to see all that you had to offer. This was

Giving Thanks. Senior Joe Adams thanks his friends when he is crowned prom king. After he was crowned, Joe enjoyed a spotlight dance with his new queen.

Proud of their Peers. Valedictorian Beth Kitler, Salutatorian Ashley Heaton, and Third-honor graduate Wayne Wright observe the processional of the seniors at the beginning of the ceremonies. In her address, Beth encouraged the graduates to "be not afraid" as they set sail on "life's uncertain voyage."

perhaps most important for you seniors, who realized that hidden talents and abilities, once revealed, were beneficial especially when leaving behind the comfort zone of high school. No matter who you were, you helped to contribute to the unity of your high school high.

— Ashley Heaton and Leah Steele