

GIVING THE COMPETITION SOMETHING TO WORRY ABOUT

The track team firmly established themselves by giving the other teams a run for their money. The team competed well and worked hard to let the competition know that they are here to stay.

The team practiced hard by having practice five times a week, two hours a day. They had to stretch, run, and practice in the individual event in which each player competed. A lot of the team members even practiced outside of school. All of their hard work payed off, though, when it was time to compete.

Like all other athletic teams around Walterboro High, they knew that Summerville would be the hardest team with which to compete. Sophomore Esther Hollington commented on that subject: "They have a big team and are more experienced. They always made our team seem small in comparison."

The coaches motivated the team by giving them words of encouragement and helping them to realize what they did wrong. "My coach helped me to improve myself and told me that I could excel in anything I do if I practice hard and believe in myself," said sophomore Caroletta Felder.

The track team should be congratulated on their great sportsmanship and their superb record. Practice, determination, and hard work helped them to achieve their goals and reach for the stars. The coaches encouraged them to believe in themselves and inspired them to do their best. Any way you write it, the formula they used to compete spells winner.

TAKING CHARGE

Oh boy, this one is going to take a lot of determination! Sophomore Caroletta Felder competes in a discus competition at a meet. Caroletta was a member of the Student Council.

Ahead of the game. Junior Phillip Crain proves his endurance while running at a track meet. He was also a member of the cross country team.
