Spirit

Rock and Roll! As a tribute to 80's rock bands, juniors Will Germroth, Calen Brown, and Kevin Carey dress up as Guns and Roses. "We just wanted to show our school spirit, and pay homage to our generation at the same time. We got some whistles from the ladies too," Calen said.

Celebrities at school? Striking a pose, juniors Tikima Bowers and Diamond White pose as their favorite singers, Lil' Kim and Aaliyah. "Lil' Kim has such an awesome personality. She is outgoing and crazy, just like me! I look up to her because she isn't afraid to try new things," Tikima said.

Caught up in the spirit, only the most spirited students participated by dressing up everyday. Because Friday was a teacher work day, students had a day to relax before the big Homecoming game. Monday was Tacky day. Students gained attention by dressing as tastelessly as possible.

"I liked the new idea of Tacky day. A lot of people dressed up, and it was fun seeing them look silly," sophomore Kevin Kinard said.

Tuesday, or Twin day, gave friends the chance to dress exactly alike.

"I really enjoyed twin day because it lets people know who my friends are," senior Yateshia Williams said.

Wednesday was Character/Hero day, which allowed students to dress up like cartoon characters or people they admired.

"I dressed up like Betty Boop because that was my nickname when I was a child," senior Beth Kubik said.

Thursday was Blue and White day. It allowed both students and faculty to show their spirit. The halls were decorated with faces covered in blue and white paint.

Spirit Week gave everyone an opportunity to show their support for the Bulldogs, one last time.

-Andrea Morotto

"I love to dress up for Spirit Week. I think it's funny to see the students and teachers in goofy costumes. It's kind of sad that next year I won't get the chance to celebrate with everybody."
