

Crowded corridors. After being dismissed from their fourth period classes, students flow into tiny hallways and out the doors. Students hoped the new addition would make for more room in the hallways and classrooms.

Plenty of room. Students such as freshman Katie Carter agree that the hallways are not as crowded as many think. "I usually don't have much trouble getting to my classes during the day," Katie said, "but my classes are pretty close together."

five reasons for combining schools

1. Sports teams will improve
2. More people to socialize with
3. A more diverse group of students
4. 5,000 more books in the library
5. New teachers

five reasons for not combining schools

1. Too many people
2. Crowded hallways
3. Conflict between students
4. New materials (books, uniforms, etc) are expensive
5. Student/teacher ratio
