fans yelled, "Go Bulldogs!" as the J.V. girls ran onto the court. The girls' faces beamed with excitement as they prepared to play the game. The season started out hard for the girls, but they did not let it hold them down. The team remained strong. They kept their heads high and put their all into every game. The 2002 team consisted of a tight-knit group of girls, which helped the team to reach many victories.

"Everyone gets along very well. We all have very close friendships, which has really affected how we play because we all are very supportive of each other and try to do our best everytime we play," junior Courtney Vincent said.

With the coming of new coach, Lorraine Browning, the girls strived to do their bests. "Coach Browning is very supportive and dedicated to helping us," sophomore Diandra Dobson said. Even though only five players were allowed onto the court onto the court at once, players on the sidelines kept high spirits. Luckily the team was injury-free except for a few sprained ankles.

"Everyone on the team was dedicated and serious about playing every game to their best ability," freshman Brittney Grant said, "They all had high spirits, and continued to keep smiling even after the disappointments. We always put our all into practicing and preparing for every game."

The teammates were very close and enjoyed playing on the same team with each other. They always put their all into every game and worked as hard as possible. A majority of the girls planned on playing next year and anticipated a wonderful season full of many more successes.

Dribbling to success. In attempt to score, junior Shannon Doubleday dribbles the ball down the court to the goal. Shannon flew past her opponents as she took the ball to the hoop.

Concentration. Determined to win the game, sophomore Dee Dobson concentrates on getting past the other team. "I enjoyed playing especially when I got scored and we won," Dee said.
